southern exposure
WHAT'S NOW, NEW AND NEXT AT SOUTHERN OREGON UNIVERSITY

Campus Theme: psychology and evolutionary theory

This is a gentle reminder that our next Campus Theme event is coming up this Wednesday. You are warmly invited to attend.

Here is a brief program description:

"Paradigm-ish": Psychology's Awkward Embrace of Evolutionary Theory

Psychologists have had an on-again, off-again relationship with evolutionary theory. They have borrowed pieces they like, and inexplicably ignored others. Evolution has been seen as a tie binding all approaches to psychology, or a snag threatening to unravel culturally-focused perspectives. Regardless, evolutionary theory has been very useful to psychology, and there is progress. The story I'd like to tell is that paradigm shifts do not necessarily play out in a tidy, linear, beginning-middle-end form.

Dr. Mark Krause, Professor of Psychology, Southern Oregon University

Wednesday, November 4, 2026 * 7 pm

Meese Auditorium AB 101, SOU Art Building