

History After Hours is an hour-long Zoom conversation designed to provide alternative forms of learning and enrichment to undergraduate students by focusing on the opportunities that exist (both on and off-campus) to hone their skills as historians in training. This quarter Professor Jarett Henderson has organized five of these events for students in World History (though History majors, minors, and the History curious are all welcome) as a way to interact with students in this large (there are more students in this class than people in Jarett's hometown) lecture course that has asynchronous lectures and TA-led synchronous sections.

Those in HIST 2C held their first History After Hours on 7 April 2021 and welcomed four guests who spent ten minutes (30 minutes in total) speaking about how students can make history or do history stuff on the UCSB campus. Alyssa Ramirez, Social Media Director for the award-winning UCSB History Club, John Kennedy, a newly minted UCSB alum and former Managing Editor of the UCSB Undergraduate Journal of History, and Vice-Chair Jillian Wertzberger and External Student Coordinator Katelyn Wong of the UCSB

Living History Project spoke of the varied extracurricular, internship, and paid research opportunities that students could become involved with through their organizations here at UCSB.

At the second event on Monday, 19 April 2021, Dr. Sasha Coles who is a long-time Disney fan and founder of the Enchanted Archives, a digital platform that uses mobile-friendly maps to unearth the historical roots of Disney park food, aesthetics, and attractions spoke to undergraduates (as she describes it) about "Disney like you've never seen it before!" Dr. Coles was joined by Dr. Brian Griffith, the Eugen and Jacqueline Weber Post-Doctoral Scholar in European History at UCLA, who introduced students to his Open Access digital archive that features a collection of neo-fascist posters that he 'harvested' from the streets and alleyways of Rome between 2018 and 2019.

Additional History After Hours discussions are scheduled for May and June. On Monday, 3 May 2021 Monica Orozco, the Executive Director of the Santa Barbara Mission (a former UCSB graduate) and Calli Force (UCSB Archives) who is curating both the COVID-19 Community Archives and the Santa Barbara Black Lives Matter Community Archives introduced participants to what Jarett is calling "Citizen History" (the historian's take on "Citizen Science"). Then, on Tuesday, 18 May 2021, Averill Earls, from the DIG Podcast took students behind the scenes of the writing and production of history podcasts. The Final History After Hours of the Spring Quarter on Wednesday, 2 June 2021, at 4 PM will feature the public history work of two current history graduate students - Nicky Rehnberg and Anna Rudolph - who will address the opportunities that await students at public heritage sites and state parks.

If you want to learn more about History After Hours or participate yourself, please contact Jarett at: jhenderson@history.ucsb.edu.

Use this ZOOM link for History After Hours events: <https://ucsb.zoom.us/j/83638516286>

