

States Newsroom

FAIR. FEARLESS. FREE.

FREE COVERAGE FROM A DEDICATED D.C. BUREAU

Who

The D.C. Bureau of States Newsroom, the nation's largest nonprofit state-focused news organization. Five reporters and a bureau chief with decades of experience.

What

A feed of breaking and enterprise news stories from the nation's capital, where staff members cover Congress, the White House, federal agencies and key Supreme Court cases that affect the states.

Where

Reporters are based in Washington, delivering a news feed to your local publication.

When

Daily.

Why

We fill a gap in today's news reporting. Our focus is always on how news will play out and affect readers at the state level.

How

Our daily news stories are distributed by RSS feed and are free to republish.

Get access to Washington reporting with an eye toward impact on the states – coverage that's fair, fearless, free.

States Newsroom's Washington, D.C., Bureau fills a gap in today's news reporting: coverage of Congress, the White House and U.S. Supreme Court with an intentional focus on how news developments will affect the states.

In today's media environment, giving local readers comprehensive coverage of the news that matters in their lives requires creativity. Few newsrooms can do it all anymore. By tapping into States Newsroom's coverage, and our new D.C. Bureau feed, publishers and editors can easily access thorough, daily coverage of federal and state developments that affect readers.
