Program led by Fredi Bleeker Franks

Fredi Bleeker Franks has been a member of Congregation Emanu El in Houston, Texas for more than 30 years, serving in many leadership capacities. She is active in the community as well; she serves as a docent and is on several committees at the Holocaust Museum Houston. Before she retired several years ago, she was employed by the UTHealth Science Center, Houston. Fredi served on the board and executive committee of the Women of Reform Judaism North America, and travels to sisterhoods by request to work with them with leadership development, strategic planning, and conflict resolution. She is the coordinator for WRJ Today, the weekly e-letter from WRJ. She is a member of the URJ North American Board, serving on several committees including Board Engagement, REDI, and the Committee on Endowments, Trust Funds, and Investments.
