The University Libraries partnered with the Analytics and Institutional Research Office to implement a new research data management tool to capture scholarship activities, including publications, creative works, conference presentations, patents, and more. This new tool uses Artificial Intelligence (AI) to capture as many scholarship activities as possible from an index of nearly 20,000 databases. Join us for an introduction to the tool and to view researcher profiles and scholarship migrated from the PDMS and other sources over the past year.
