

Rebecca Russo

Executive Director of the Campus Climate Initiative
Hillel International

Rebecca directs the Campus Climate Initiative, working collaboratively with campus administrators and local Hillels across North America to ensure a positive campus climate for Jewish students.

Rebecca was previously the Director of Campus Engagement at Interfaith Youth Core (IFYC), where she partnered with campus administrators around the country to engage religious diversity productively, led interfaith strategic planning consultations and trainings, oversaw campus grants, and launched the Campus Interfaith Inventory, a national institutional survey. Prior to IFYC, Rebecca worked in Educational Resources and Organizational Development at UJA-Federation of New York and was the Doppelt Director of Engagement at Northwestern University's Fiedler Hillel.

Rebecca holds a B.A. in Middle East Studies from Brown University and an MBA from Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management.
