I. INTRODUCTION

1. The States of Washington, California, Maryland, Oregon, New Mexico, New Jersey, Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota, Rhode Island, New York, Vermont, North Carolina, and Delaware; the Commonwealths of Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and Virginia; and the District of Columbia (collectively, the States) bring this action to protect the States and their residents against the Trump Administration's practice of refusing entry to asylum applicants who present at Southwestern border ports of entry and its cruel and unlawful policy of forcibly separating families who enter the country along our Southwestern border.

2. Widespread news reports, as well as interviews of detainees in Seattle and elsewhere, confirm that families fleeing violence and persecution in their home countries who try to present themselves at Southwestern ports of entry to seek asylum are being refused entry into the United States. Border officials are unlawfully turning away these families on the pretext that the United States is "full" or no longer accepting asylum seekers. This unlawful practice

1 exacerbates the trauma already suffered by refugee families while simultaneously artificially
2 increasing illegal entry violations.

3 3. For those families that do enter the United States along the Southwestern border,
4 immigration officials have implemented the Trump Administration's policy of forcibly 5 separating parents from their children – regardless of the family's circumstances or the needs of 6 the children. As of June 20, 2018, the new policy had already resulted in the separation of over 7 two thousand children from their parents at the Southwestern border, most recently at a rate of 8 50-70 families separated every day. Defendants have taken children as young as infants from 9 their parents, often with no warning or opportunity to say goodbye, and providing no information
10 about where the children are being taken or when they will next see each other. The States'
11 interviews of detainees in their respective jurisdictions confirm the gratuitous harm that this 12 policy inflicts on parents and children and the immediate and deleterious impact it has on 13 families and communities.

14 4. As of June 25, 2018, emerging reports suggest that immigration officials are now 15 using the children taken from their parents as leverage to coerce parents to withdraw their asylum 16 claims.

17 5. Defendants have repeatedly and publicly admitted that a policy of intentionally
18 separating immigrant children from their parents would be "cruel, "horrible," and "antithetical 19 to child welfare." But they have alternately claimed that they have no such policy, or that it is 20 somehow mandated by federal law or prior court decisions.

21 6. In truth, however, Defendants have embraced a policy of separating parents from 22 their children for the express purpose of deterring immigration along the Southwestern border
24
25
26

1 (the “Policy”). No law or court decision requires such separation. Rather, Defendants have
2 chosen to adopt the Policy as part of their “zero tolerance” or “100 percent prosecution” approach
3 to individuals who enter the country unlawfully, irrespective of circumstances, and to then use 4 such misdemeanor criminal charges to detain parents indefinitely in federal facilities that cannot 5 accommodate families.

7 7. Hundreds of children are left to languish in makeshift detention facilities – where 8 staff are sometimes told not to comfort them – until a placement is found for the child.
9 Defendants have moved the children and parents to different locations all over the country. While 10 the parents are held in federal facilities to await further immigration proceedings, their children 11 are sent elsewhere to group shelters or family placements.

13 8. Defendants have made clear that the purpose of separating families is not to 14 protect children, but rather to create a public spectacle designed to deter potential immigrants
15 from coming to the United States. As Counselor to the President Kellyanne Conway said 16 recently: “Nobody likes seeing babies ripped from their mothers’ arms . . . but we have to make 17 sure that DHS’ laws are understood through the soundbite culture that we live in.” KellyAnne
18 Conway: ‘Nobody likes’ Policy Separating Migrant Kids at the Border (June 17, 2018) available
19 at https://www.nbcnews.com/politics/first-read/conway-nobody-likes-policy-separating-
20 migrant-kids-border-n884016, attached hereto as Ex. 1. Defendants’ Policy is causing severe,
21 intentional, and permanent trauma to the children and parents who are separated in furtherance 22 of an illegitimate deterrence objective.

24 9. On June 20, 2018, President Trump signed an Executive Order purporting to 25 suspend the Policy, but any relief offered by the Order is illusory. The Order says nothing about 26

1 reuniting the families already ripped apart by the federal government, and Trump Administration
2 officials have made clear the Order will have no impact on the thousands of families who have 3 already been traumatized.

4 10. Moreover, based on its text and contemporaneous statements by Administration
5 officials, it is clear the Order does not require the end of family separation. In fact, the 6 Administration currently lacks both the capacity and the legal authority to detain families
7 together for indefinite periods of time, which is what the Order contemplates as the alternative 8 to separating families.

10 11. On June 21, 2018, as required by the Order, Attorney General Sessions filed an 11 Ex Parte Application for relief from the Flores Settlement (a 1997 agreement which sets national 12 standards regarding the detention, release, and treatment of all children in DHS custody). That 13 request seeks rescission of Flores' protections so that families may be detained indefinitely
14 during the pendency of any immigration proceedings involving their members, a plan that raises 15 the specter of internment camps.

17 12. Moreover, the Flores application seeks a "determin[ation] that the Agreement's 18 state licensure requirement does not apply to ICE family residential facilities." The government's 19 attempt to modify the Flores settlement terms by removing States' licensing authority and 20 jurisdiction over such facilities is a direct attack on the States' sovereign powers.

22 13. Neither the Order nor the Administration's Flores application offer any assurance
23 that the Administration will not return to a family separation policy when its efforts to intern
24 families together fail. In response to the public outcry against family separation, in recent days
25 President Trump has proposed that Homeland Security simply deport immigrants without 26

1 hearing or legal process instead of, or perhaps in addition to, interning thousands of families in 2 military facilities.

3 14. The Policy, and the Trump Administration's subsequent attempt to shield their 4 facilities from state licensing standards, is an affront to States' sovereign interests in enforcing
5 their laws governing minimum standards of care for children, declaring the family unit to be a 6 fundamental resource of American life that should be nurtured, and requiring the preservation of 7 the parent-child relationship unless the child's right to basic nurture, health, or safety is 8 jeopardized. The Policy also adversely affects the States' proprietary interests, forcing States to 9 expend resources to remediate the harms inflicted by the Policy, some of which are likely to be 10 permanent. State programs, including child welfare services, social and health services, courts, 11 and public schools are all experiencing fiscal impacts due to family separation that will only 12 increase. The Policy, and the Administration's related conduct, has caused severe and immediate 13 harm to the States and their residents, including parents who are detained, released, or otherwise 14 reside in the States after being forcibly separated from their children; children who are placed in 15 facilities, shelters, sponsor homes, foster care, or who otherwise reside in the States after being 16 separated from their parents; extended families and sponsors in the States; and the States' 17 immigrant communities.

18 15. The Court should declare the practice of refusing to accept asylum seekers who 19 present at Southwestern points of entry and the related Policy of family separation illegal and 20 order Defendants to stop implementing them immediately. The Court should order Defendants 21 to reunite every family separated by these unlawful acts immediately, and to take such other 22 actions as are warranted by the time of hearing. Defendants' conduct has caused real harms to
25
26

1 the States and our residents, harms that will only increase unless Defendants are enjoined from 2 continuing.

3 II. JURISDICTION AND VENUE

4 16. The Court has jurisdiction pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331 and 2201(a). The United 5 States' sovereign immunity is waived by 5 U.S.C. § 702.

6 17. Venue is proper in this district pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1391(b)(2) and 7 1391(e)(1). Defendants are the United States of America and United States agencies or officers
8 sued in their official capacities. The State of Washington is a resident of this judicial district, and 9 a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to this Complaint occurred within the 10 Western District of Washington. For example, as of June 18, 2018, parents who were recently
11 refused entry and then victimized by the Policy were being detained at the Federal Detention 12 Center – SeaTac, which is located in King County. At that time, a number of children who were 13 separated from their parents pursuant to the Policy also were being detained in Seattle and other 14 nearby locations.

15 18. The States bring this action to redress harms to their sovereign, proprietary, and 16 parens patriae interests.

18 A. Plaintiffs

19 19. The Plaintiff States of Washington, California, Maryland, Oregon, New Mexico, 20 New Jersey, Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota, Rhode Island, New York, Vermont, North Carolina, 21 Delaware, and the Commonwealths of Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and Virginia, represented
22 by and through their Attorneys General, are sovereign states of the United States of America.
25
26

1 The District of Columbia, represented by and through its Attorney General, is a municipal 2 corporation organized under the Constitution of the United States and the local government for 3 the territory constituting the permanent seat of the federal government.

4 20. The States are aggrieved and have standing to bring this action because of the 5 injuries to the States caused by the Policy, including immediate and irreparable injuries to their 6 sovereign, proprietary, and quasi-sovereign interests.

7 21. Nothing in the June 20 Executive Order remedies these harms, and the June 21
 8 application to modify Flores is a direct attack on the sovereign powers of the States.

 10 B. Defendant Federal Agencies and Officers

11 22. Defendant the United States of America includes government agencies and 12 departments responsible for the implementation of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) 13 and the admission, detention, and removal of non-citizens who are traveling or returning to the 14 United States via air, land, and sea ports across the United States.

15 23. Defendant Donald Trump is the President of the United States, and he is sued in 16 his official capacity.

17 24. Defendant Department of Homeland Security (DHS) is a federal cabinet agency
 18 responsible for implementing and enforcing the INA. DHS is a Department of the Executive 19 Branch of the U.S. Government, and is an agency within the meaning of 5 U.S.C. § 552(f).

20 25. Defendant Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) is the component
 21 agency of DHS that is responsible for carrying out removal orders; operating adult immigration 22 detention facilities; and contracting for the detention of immigrants in removal proceedings, 23 including with public and private operators of detention centers, jails, and prisons.

1 26. The U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) is an Operational and Support
2 Component agency within DHS. CBP is responsible for detaining and/or removing non-citizens
3 arriving at air, land, and sea ports across the United States.

4 27. Defendant U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) is a component
5 agency of DHS that, through its Asylum Officers, conducts interviews of certain individuals 6 apprehended at the border to determine whether they have a credible fear of persecution and 7 should be permitted to apply for asylum.

8 28. Defendant U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is a 9 department of the executive branch of the U.S. government.

10 29. Defendant Office of Refugee Resettlement (ORR) is a component of HHS which 11 provides care for and placement for unaccompanied noncitizen children.

12 30. Defendant Kirstjen Nielsen is the Secretary of DHS. She is sued in her official 13 capacity.

14 31. Defendant Thomas Homan is the acting Director of ICE and is sued in his official
15 capacity.

16 32. Defendant Kevin K. McAleenan is the Commissioner of CBP and is sued in his 17 official capacity.

18 33. Defendant Alex Azar is the Secretary of HHS and is sued in his official capacity.

19 34. Defendant Scott Lloyd is Director of ORR and is sued in his official capacity.

20 35. Defendant Jefferson Beauregard Sessions III is sued in his official capacity as the 21 Attorney General of the United States. In this capacity, he has responsibility for the
24
25
26

1 administration of the immigration laws pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1103 and oversees the Executive 2 Office of Immigration Review.

3 IV. ALLEGATIONS

4 A. Federal Immigration Policy Has Traditionally Emphasized Family Reunification, 5 Recognizing that Children Belong with their Families

6 36. When DHS, typically through ICE or CBP, detains an undocumented child who 7 is traveling alone, i.e., unaccompanied by a parent, the relevant federal agencies follow an 8 established process. Specifically, ICE or CBP may detain an unaccompanied alien child (UAC)
9 for up to 72 hours, as other federal agencies locate an appropriate shelter facility for that child.
10 8 U.S.C. § 1232(b)(3). ICE or CBP then must turn the child over to the ORR for shelter 11 placement. Id.

12 37. Once in ORR custody, children are placed in ORR-funded and supervised 13 shelters, where staff must attempt to locate a parent and determine if family reunification is 14 possible. If ORR is unable to find a parent, ORR staff will try to locate another family member, 15 relative, family friend, or caretaker in the United States to serve as a sponsor who can care for 16 the child during the pendency of any subsequent immigration proceeding.

17 38. Unaccompanied children in ORR custody for whom no sponsor placement can 18 be made are moved to secondary ORR-contracted and state-licensed group care facilities, which 19 can be anywhere in the country. In such cases, if ORR assesses that the child has a pathway to 20 legal immigration status, ORR will place the child in an ORR-contracted and state-licensed long
21 term foster care program while the immigration process continues. If ORR determines that a
22 pathway does not exist, the child may remain in a shelter or ORR-contracted and state-licensed 23 group care during removal proceedings.
26

39. Thus, unaccompanied children typically arrive in the individual states in three ways: they may be placed initially in a state-licensed shelter located in the state while ORR determines if a family member can be found in the country; they may arrive when ORR releases them to the care of an in-state sponsor while their immigration proceeding goes forward; or they can be moved into a placement in an ORR-contracted and state-licensed long term foster care program as they await their immigration proceeding.

40. While ORR's initial shelter care placement and long term foster care programs are largely federally funded, an unaccompanied child's in-state placements impose burdens on the receiving state, discussed below.

B. After Almost a Year of Threats, Defendants Adopted an Official Policy of Separating Families Who Cross the Southwestern Border, Creating a New Class of "Unaccompanied" Children

41. For over a year, the Trump Administration has made clear in numerous public statements that it was considering an official Policy to separate families at the Southwestern border in an effort to deter immigrants from Latin America from coming to the United States.

42. As early as March 2017, a senior DHS official stated that Defendants were considering a proposal to separate children from their parents at the Southwestern border. See Mary Kay Mallonee, DHS Considering Proposal to Separate Children From Adults at Border (March 4, 2017) available at <https://www.cnn.com/2017/03/03/politics/dhs-children-adults-border/>, attached hereto as Ex. 2.

43. On March 7, 2017, John Kelly, the then-Secretary of DHS, confirmed that DHS was considering a policy of separating children from their parents: "I am considering that. They will be well cared for as we deal with their parents." See Daniella Diaz, Kelly: DHS Considering

2 available at https://www.cnn.com/2017/03/06/politics/john-kelly-separating-children-from-
3 parents-immigration-border/index.html, attached hereto as Ex. 3.

4 44. Then-Secretary Kelly publicly backed away from those statements after harsh
5 criticism from the press, human-rights advocates, and members of Congress. See Tal Kopan, 6 Kelly Says DHS Won't Separate Families at the Border (March 29, 2017) available at 7 <https://www.cnn.com/2017/03/29/politics/border-families-separation-kelly/index.html> and 8 attached hereto as Ex. 4. An inside source, however, reported that the family separation proposal 9 was still on the table for discussion at DHS as of August 2017. See Jonathan Blitzer, How the 10 Trump Administration Got Comfortable Separating Immigrant Kids From Their Parents, The 11 New Yorker (May 30, 2018) available at https://www.newyorker.com/news/news-desk/how-

13 attached hereto as Ex. 5.

14 45. In fact, DHS secretly piloted the Policy in the El Paso sector of the border in 15 western Texas from July to November 2017. See Dara Lind, Trump's DHS is Using an
16 Extremely Dubious Statistic to Justify Splitting up Families at the Border, Vox (May 8, 2018)
17 available at https://www.vox.com/policy-and-politics/2018/5/8/17327512/sessions-illegal-
18 immigration-border-asylum-families, attached hereto as Ex. 6.

19 46. It was later reported that between October 2017 and April 2018, 700 families
20 were separated at the Southwestern border, including at least 100 children under the age of four.
21 See Ex. 3.

1 47. On February 12, 2018, 33 U.S. Senators also a letter to DHS Secretary Nielsen, 2 concerned that DHS was carrying out “a systematic and blanket policy to separate a child from 3 a parent” upon arrival to the United States—a policy the Senators condemned as “cruel” and 4 “grotesquely inhumane.” The letter is attached hereto as Ex. 7. The letter notes that Secretary
 5 Nielsen “failed to repudiate” such a policy during a recent Senate Judiciary Committee hearing, 6 and points to “numerous [documented] cases in which parents have been separated from their 7 children.” Id.

9 48. In the spring of 2018, an influx of families seeking to enter the United States may 10 have catalyzed the Administration to finally embrace the Policy. In March and April of 2018, 11 the number of families from Latin America apprehended at the Southwestern border increased 12 dramatically, going from 5,475 in February to 8,873 in March (a 62% increase) and 9,653 in 13 April (a 76% increase from February). See Southwest Border Migration FY2018, U.S. Dept. of 14 Homeland Security available at <https://www.cbp.gov/newsroom/stats/sw-border-migration>, 15 attached hereto as Ex. 8 and Southwest Border Migration FY2017, U.S. Dept. of Homeland
 16 Security available at <https://www.cbp.gov/newsroom/stats/sw-border-migration-fy2017#>,
 17 attached hereto as Ex. 9¹.

22 ¹ CBP tracks “apprehensions” and “inadmissibles” separately and adds these together to count
 23 “total enforcement actions.” See CBP Enforcement Statistics FY2018, U.S. Customs and Border
 24 Protection available at <https://www.cbp.gov/newsroom/stats/cbp-enforcement-statistics>, attached hereto
 25 as Ex. 10. “Inadmissibles refers to individuals encountered at ports of entry who are seeking lawful 26 admission into the United States but are determined to be inadmissible, individuals presenting themselves to seek humanitarian protection under our laws, and individuals who withdraw an application for admission and return to their countries of origin within a short timeframe.” Id. “Apprehensions refers to the physical control or temporary detainment of a person who is not lawfully in the U.S. which may or may not result in an arrest.” Id.

1 49. The number of family units deemed to be inadmissible went from 3,941 in 2 February to 5,162 in March (a 31% increase) and 5,445 in April (a 38% increase from February).
 3 See Ex. 8. These numbers include all persons who enter at ports of entry but are deemed to be 4 inadmissible; asylum seekers; and individuals who apply for admission but subsequently return
 5 to their countries of origin within a short time frame. See Ex. 9. The numbers reflected an 6 increase of 672% in March 2018 in comparison to March 2017, and 697% in April 2018 in 7 comparison to April 2017. Compare Exs. 8 and 9.

9 50. According to at least one source, the President's frustration with the rising
 10 numbers of Latino immigrants at the Southwestern border in March and April of 2018 was the 11 impetus for publicly adopting the Policy. See Ex. 5. When asked what had changed since the 12 prior year – when the Administration backed away from adopting such a policy – the person 13 pointed to the President: “What you’re seeing now is a President’s frustration with the fact that 14 the numbers are back up.” Id.

16 51. In early April 2018, President Trump reportedly expressed frustration with DHS 17 Secretary Nielsen for failing to stop or decrease immigration at the Southwestern border. Several 18 officials stated that one persistent issue was President Trump's belief that Secretary Nielsen and 19 DHS were resisting his direction that parents be separated from their children when crossing 20 unlawfully at the US-Mexico border. See Shear and Pearlroth, Kirstjen Nielsen, Chief of 21 Homeland Security, Almost Resigned After Trump Tirade (May 10, 2018) available at 22 https://www.nytimes.com/2018/05/10/us/politics/trump-homeland-security-secretary-
 23 resign.html, attached hereto as Ex. 11. The President and his aides had been pushing a family
 26

1 separation policy for weeks as a way to deter families from crossing the Southwestern border
2 illegally. Id.

3 52. On April 6, 2018, President Trump issued a memorandum directing Attorney
4 General Sessions and DHS Secretary Nielsen to detail all measures and identify any resources
5 or steps “needed to expeditiously end ‘catch and release’ practices” that allow undocumented 6 immigrants to be released into the community pending resolution of their immigration cases.

8 53. That same day, Attorney General Sessions formally announced a
9 “zero-tolerance” policy “for offenses under 8 U.S.C. § 1325(a), which prohibits both attempted
10 illegal entry and illegal entry into the United States by an alien.” See Attorney General
11 Announces Zero-Tolerance Policy for Criminal Illegal Entry, U.S. Department of Justice (April 12 6, 2018) available at https://www.justice.gov/opa/pr/attorney-general-announces-zero-
13 tolerance-policy-criminal-illegal-entry, attached hereto as Ex. 12.

15 54. In a memorandum also issued April 6, Attorney General Sessions “direct[ed] each 16 United States Attorney’s Office along the Southwest Border . . . to adopt immediately a 17 zero-tolerance policy for all offenses referred for prosecution under section 1325(a)” and made 18 clear that this directive “superseded any existing policy.” See Memorandum for Federal 19 Prosecutors Along the Southwest Border (April 6, 2018), attached hereto as Ex. 13.

21 55. On May 7, 2018, DHS adopted an official Policy of “referring 100 percent of 22 illegal Southwest Border crossings to the Department of Justice for prosecution,” and Attorney
23 General Sessions publicized that children would be automatically separated from parents or other 24 adults with whom they were traveling. See Attorney General Sessions Delivers Remarks
25 Discussing the Immigration Enforcement Actions of the Trump Administration, Justice News 26

(May 7, 2018) available at <https://www.justice.gov/opa/speech/attorney-general-sessions-delivers-remarks-discussing-immigration-enforcement-actions>, attached hereto as Ex. 14.

56. With that, Attorney General Sessions and Secretary Nielsen carried out President Trump’s directive: Under the new federal law enforcement priority, all undocumented adults crossing the U.S.-Mexico border at unauthorized locations would be referred by DHS to the Department of Justice. DOJ would then charge each adult with misdemeanor illegal entry or reentry. Everyone so referred would be prosecuted and detained regardless of familial circumstances or asylum claims, and children would be automatically separated from their parents and transferred to the custody of ORR for placement elsewhere.

57. Accordingly, Defendants have thus created a new category of “unaccompanied” children – those who came into the country with a parent but were, pursuant to the Policy, forcibly separated by ICE or CBP immediately thereafter.

58. Perhaps emboldened by the directive, DHS officers at ports of entry along the Southwestern border have been refusing to let immigrants present themselves and request asylum, turning people away because the United States is “full.” See Alfredo Corchado, Asylum Seekers Reportedly Denied Entry at Border as Trump Tightens ‘Zero Tolerance’ Immigration Policies (June 6, 2018) available at <https://www.dallasnews.com/news/immigration/2018/06/06/reports-turning-back-asylum-seekers-border-crossings-trump-tightens-grip-zero-tolerance-immigration-policies>, attached hereto as Ex. 15.

59. One report describes immigrants who were turned away on the bridge in El Paso by CBP officers before they reached the border checkpoint, so they were unable to make their

1 asylum request at the port of entry. Id. Ruben Garcia, founder of a nonprofit that assists
2 immigrants in El Paso explains: “If you look indigenous and you look Central American, they 3 will stop you . . . They never ask why they are coming. They just say we can’t receive you.”
4 Id. When asked why they are refusing to allow immigrants to reach checkpoints to request
5 asylum, CBP officials state that centers are “full.” Id.

7 60. Recent interviews with detained parents held in federal facilities in Seattle
8 confirm these reports. For example, one mother presented herself and her 15-year old son at the 9 Laredo, Texas port of entry and requested asylum for herself and safe passage for her American-
10 citizen son. Officials at the port of entry detained her, separated her from her son, and told her
11 that the United States “will not give [her] asylum” and that she “w[ould] not see [her] son again 12 until he turns 18” because he would be taken to a shelter or given to an American family for 13 adoption. Another mother claiming asylum was told, in front of her 14-year-old daughter, that 14 she would be “punished with jail time” for having come to the United States.

16 61. The effect of this conduct is an increasing influx of entrants at locations other 17 than ports of entry, which Defendants construe as violations of 8 U.S.C. § 1325 and its 18 implementing regulations. The adults are then routed into the criminal system while the children 19 are turned over to ORR for placement – thereby separating the family and implementing the 20 Policy.

22 62. Since announcing the Policy, Defendants have repeatedly acknowledged its 23 existence and cruelty. For example, President Trump, tweeting on May 26, 2018, referred to the 24 Policy as a “horrible law.” The May 26, 2018 tweet is attached hereto as Ex. 16.

1 63. On May 29, 2018, Devin O'Malley, a Justice Department spokesman, recapped
 2 the Policy, telling reporters that suspected crossers "will not be given a free pass," and will face
 3 criminal prosecution and federal detention "irrespective of whether or not they have brought a
 4 child with them." See Ted Hesson, White House's Miller blames Democrats for border crisis,

 6 democrats-border-574537, attached hereto as Ex. 17.

8 64. On June 16, 2018, it was reported that Senior Advisor to the President Stephen
 9 Miller was a driving force in adoption and implementation of the Policy. See Chas Danner,

 12 of-the-plan.html, attached hereto as Ex. 18. While others acknowledge the controversial nature 13 of the Policy, Mr. Miller unapologetically embraced it, calling it "a simple decision by the 14 administration The message is that no one is exempt from immigration law." Id.

16 65. On June 17, 2018, Counselor to the President Kellyanne Conway acknowledged 17 the existence of the Policy in an interview with NBC's "Meet the Press," stating, "As a mother, 18 as a Catholic, as somebody who has a conscience . . . I will tell you that nobody likes this policy."
 19 See Ex. 1. She continued, "Nobody likes seeing babies ripped from their mothers' arms, from 20 their mothers' wombs, frankly, but we have to make sure that DHS' laws are understood through 21 the soundbite culture that we live in." Id.

23 66. On June 18, 2018, President Trump characterized the Policy as one of the United 24 States' "horrible and tough" immigration laws. See Hains, Tim, President Trump: "The United 25 States Will Not be a Migrant Camp", "Not On My Watch" (June 18, 2018) available at

3 67. Also on June 18, 2018, in remarks before the National Sheriffs' Association
 4 (NSA), Attorney General Sessions promoted the deterrent effect of family separation: "We 5 cannot and will not encourage people to bring their children or other children to the country
 6 unlawfully by giving them immunity in the process." See Luis Sanchez, Sessions on separating

10 68. And in her remarks to the NSA, DHS Secretary Nielsen also confirmed the 11 existence of the Policy, stating: "Illegal actions have and must have consequences. No more 12 free passes, no more get out of jail free cards." See Tal Kopan, 'We will not apologize': Trump

 14 <https://www.cnn.com/2018/06/18/politics/kirstjen-nielsen-immigration-policy/index.html>,
 15 attached hereto as Ex. 21.

16 69. The Policy has resulted in thousands of brutal familial separations.

17 70. For example, during a briefing call on June 15, 2018, DHS officials admitted that 18 1,995 children were separated from 1,940 adults at the U.S.-Mexico border from April 19
 19 through May 31, 2018. The adults were all referred for prosecution. See How Trump Family

 22 it-is-today, attached hereto as Ex. 22.

71. According to DHS data released on June 18, 2018 by Senator Dianne Feinstein, federal immigration officials separated 2,342 children from adults at the border between May 5 and June 9, 2018. See Louis Nelson, Defiant Trump refuses to back off migrant family separations, Politico (June 18, 2018) available at <https://www.politico.com/story/2018/06/18/trump-immigration-child-separations-650875>, attached hereto as Ex. 23.

C. The President’s Executive Order Does Not End Family Separation

72. On June 20, 2018, President Trump issued an Executive Order entitled, “Affording Congress an Opportunity to Address Family Separation” (the Order). The Order is attached hereto as Ex. 24. While purporting to suspend the practice of separating families, the Order offers illusory relief. Indeed, the language of the Order itself does not actually require an end to family separation, and in fact, it implicitly recognizes that the Policy will continue.

73. By its own terms, the Order states that it does not confer any enforceable right or benefit on any person.

74. The Order appears to direct the Secretary of Homeland Security to detain families together “during the pendency of any criminal proceedings for improper entry or immigration proceedings involving their members,” while continuing the practice of prosecuting and detaining all unauthorized border crossers.

75. At the same time, the Order acknowledges that Defendants do not have the resources or facilities necessary to effectuate its terms. Indeed, every provision of the Order is to be carried out only “where appropriate and consistent with law and available resources.” These terms are undefined, leaving familial detention largely discretionary. Likewise, the Order

1 repeatedly affirms that family unity is “subject to the availability of appropriations,” but provides 2 no parameters on when appropriations will be sought or even how much funding is needed.

3 76. Similarly, the Order directs the Secretary of Defense to provide existing available
 4 facilities to house immigrant families, or to construct them, but again there is no indication that 5 appropriate federal facilities exist and are available, or that construction of new family 6 internment facilities is feasible.

8 77. The Order also acknowledges that Defendants cannot lawfully carry out its terms
 9 until they receive a court order “that would permit” the family detention scheme contemplated.
 10 Because almost every provision in the Order is subject to the availability of non-existent 11 resources and legal authority for indefinite detention that is contrary to settled law, it fails to 12 provide any actual relief.

14 78. The Order also is silent as to the thousands of families already separated by the 15 Policy. It does nothing to require their reunification or redress the harms inflicted on those 16 families. As a spokesperson for HHS’ Administration for Children and Families explained, 17 “There will not be a grandfathering of existing cases ... I can tell you definitively that is going 18 to be policy.” See Michael D. Shear, Abby Goodnough and Maggie Haberman, Trump Retreats

24 79. Defendants have confirmed that the Order will not end family separation, 25 ostensibly because only Congress can reverse the Policy. Notably, the Order poses a striking 26

1 contrast with the Administration’s previous statements that Congressional legislation is the sole
 2 means of ending family separation, including President Trump’s explicit statement that “You
 3 can’t do it through executive order.” See “Trump said only legislation could stop family
 4 separation. He just issued an executive order,” the Washington Post (June 20, 2018) clip

 12 80. Likewise, just days prior to issuance of the Order, Defendants stated numerous 13 times their position that only Congress could end a policy of separating families. For example, 14 on June 18, 2018, Secretary Nielsen announced: “Until these loopholes are closed by Congress,
 15 it is not possible, as a matter of law, to detain and remove whole family units who arrive illegally
 16 in the United States. Congress and the courts created this problem, and Congress alone can fix 17 it. Until then, we will enforce every law we have on the books to defend the sovereignty and 18 security of the United States.” See Matthew Nussbaum, Trump falsely claimed for days that he 19 couldn’t end family separations (June 20, 2018) available at 20 <https://www.politico.com/story/2018/06/20/trump-false-claims-family-separations-656011>, 21 attached hereto as Ex. 27.

 24 81. Also on June 18, 2018, White House Press Secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders 25 stated: “There’s only one body here that gets to create legislation and it’s Congress. Our job is 26

1 to enforce it, and we would like to see Congress fix it. That’s why the President has repeatedly 2 called on them to work with him to do just that.” Id.

3 82. And on June 20, 2018, contemporaneous with announcing the Order, Vice 4 President Pence claimed that changing the law was the only way to end family separation: “I
 5 think the American people want the Democrats to stop the obstruction, to stop standing in the 6 way of the kind of reforms at our border that will end the crisis of illegal immigration. We can

11 83. When President Trump signed the Order, Vice President Pence and Secretary
 12 Nielsen again called on Congress to end separating families at the border; Vice President Pence
 13 suggested that the Order is only applicable “in the immediate days forward” and “call[ed] on 14 Congress to change the laws” for a more permanent fix. See clip at https://www.c-

 16 policy.
 17

18 84. Later that day, at a briefing organized by the White House, Gene Hamilton, a 19 counselor to Attorney General Sessions, sidestepped a question about whether a family that 20 crosses the border now would be separated, stating that an “implementation phase” would occur,
 21 but that he was not sure precisely what DHS or HHS would do in the immediate future. Mr.
 22 Hamilton echoed President Trump’s, Nielsen’s, and Sessions’ statements that “Congress needs
 23 to provide a permanent fix for this situation.” Mr. Hamilton stated that if Congress does not act, 24 it would be up to the Flores judge to decide whether the Administration could keep families

1 together. See Charlie Savage, Explaining Trump’s Executive Order on Family Separation, (June
 2 20, 2018) available at https://www.nytimes.com/2018/06/20/us/politics/family-separation-
 3 executive-order.html, attached hereto as Ex. 29.

 5 D. Pursuant to the Order, the Attorney General Has Launched an Attack on State Sovereignty

6 85. The Order directs the Attorney General to “promptly file a request with the U.S.
 7 District Court for the Central District of California to modify the Settlement Agreement in Flores
 8 v. Sessions,” making rescission of Flores’ protections a predicate to the maintenance of family 9 unity.

 11 86. The Flores Agreement, which has been in place since 1997, “sets out nationwide 12 policy for the detention, release, and treatment of minors in the custody of the INS,” including 13 both accompanied and unaccompanied minors. Stipulated Settlement Agreement, ¶ 9, attached 14 hereto as Ex. 30. Among other things, Flores prevents the DHS from detaining children in 15 restricted facilities for long periods and it requires federal detention centers to meet state 16 licensing requirements for childcare facilities.

 18 87. As Vice President Pence previously conceded, the Flores agreement provides 19 only two options for the long term placement of families—(1) parental detention and family
 20 separation, or (2) keeping families together, by releasing them into the community. See clip 21 available at <https://www.c-span.org/video/?c4736625/pence-options-law>).

 23 88. On June 21, 2018, Attorney General Sessions filed an ex parte application
 24 seeking relief from the Flores Settlement Agreement to allow the federal government to detain
 25 families indefinitely at non-licensed facilities. Flores, et al. v. Sessions, et al., Case No. CV 85-
 26 4544-DMG (C.D. Cal.), Dkt. 435-1 at 1, 13, attached hereto as Ex. 31.

1 89. In his application, Attorney General Sessions admits that mass internment of 2 families by the federal government is currently illegal: “this Court’s construction of the Flores
3 Settlement Agreement eliminates the practical availability of family detention across the nation
4 . .” Ex. 31 at 2. “Under current law and legal rulings, including this Court’s, it is not possible
5 for the U.S. government to detain families together during the pendency of their immigration
6 proceedings. It cannot be done.” Id. at 3.

8 90. Nevertheless, Attorney General Sessions argues that indefinitely detaining
9 families is necessary for deterrence. Specifically, he asserts that, without family detention, there
10 is “a powerful incentive for aliens to enter this country with children.” Id. at 1. Attorney General 11 Session claims that, “[u]ndeniably the limitation on the option of detaining families together and 12 marked increase of families illegally crossing the border are linked.” Id. at 2. “[D]etaining 13 these individuals dispels such expectations, and deters others from unlawfully coming to the 14 United States.” Id. at 13 (internal citations omitted).

16 91. Attorney General Sessions also requests an exemption from state licensing
17 requirements, “because of ongoing and unresolved disputes over the ability of States to license 18 these types of facilities.” Ex. 31 at 17-18.

19 92. The district court and the Ninth Circuit in Flores rejected almost identical
20 arguments advanced by the federal government in 2015. See Flores v. Lynch, 212 F. Supp. 3d
21 907, 913 (C.D. Cal. 2015), aff’d in part, rev’d in part and remanded, 828 F.3d 898 (9th Cir.
22 2016); Flores v. Lynch, 828 F.3d 898, 910 (9th Cir. 2016). At that time, the government
23 requested that the trial court modify the Flores agreement to allow DHS to hold female-headed 24 families with their children indefinitely in family detention centers in Texas and New Mexico.
26

1 Rather than grant that request, the district court confirmed that Flores requires that “Defendants
 2 must house children who are not released in a non-secure facility that is licensed by an
 3 appropriate state agency to care for dependent children.” Case No. CV 85-4544-DMG (C.D.
 4 Cal.), Dkt. 177 at 12. The court stated: “The fact that the [Texas and New Mexico] family
 5 residential centers cannot be licensed by an appropriate state agency simply means that, under 6 the Agreement, [children] ... cannot be housed in these facilities except as permitted by the 7 Agreement.” Id. at 12-13.

9 93. The district court also found that the alleged “influx” of immigrants crossing the 10 U.S.-Mexico border did not constitute changed circumstances warranting the requested 11 modification and rejected the government’s stated rationale that the “family detention policy 12 [would] deter[] others who would have come.” Case No. CV 85-4544-DMG (C.D. Cal.), Dkt.
 13 177 at 23. The Ninth Circuit affirmed, stating: “The Settlement expressly anticipated an influx 14 . . . and, even if the parties did not anticipate an influx of this size, we cannot fathom how a 15 ‘suitably tailored’ response to the change in circumstances would be to exempt an entire category
 16 of migrants from the Settlement, as opposed to, say, relaxing certain requirements applicable to 17 all migrants.” Flores v. Lynch, 828 F.3d 898, 910 (9th Cir. 2016).

 20 E. Defendants’ Recent Statements Call Into Question the Administration’s Commitment to the Rule of Law

21 94. Neither the Order nor the Flores application offer any assurance that the 22 Administration will not once again return to a family separation policy when its efforts to inter 23 families together fail.

24 95. To the contrary, on June 25, 2018, Attorney General Sessions told an audience in 25 Reno, NV that DOJ would continue carrying out President Trump’s “zero-tolerance” directive

1 because to do otherwise “would encourage more adults to bring more children illegally on a
 2 dangerous journey.” The same day, CBP Commissioner Kevin McAleenan stated that his 3 agency would stop referring parents with children for prosecution but that this is a “temporary”
 4 halt. See Shannon Pettypiece and Toluse Olorunnipa, Border Patrol Halts Prosecution of 5 Families Crossing Illegally (June 25, 2018) available at

9 96. Further, the Trump Administration’s statements from June 20, 2018-June 26, 10 2018 raise the specter of further unconstitutional and unlawful acts.

11 97. For example, in response to the public outcry against family separation, the 12 Administration appears to be preparing to intern thousands of families in military facilities. As 13 Commissioner McAleenan explained, he is unable to refer parents for prosecution without 14 separating them from their children due to lack of resources, but that he and his agency are 15 working on a plan to resume criminal referrals. See Shannon Pettypiece and Toluse Olorunnipa,

13 100. Emerging reports as of June 25, 2018, suggest that immigration officials are using 14 the children taken from their parents as leverage to coerce parents to withdraw their asylum
 15 claims. The family reunification Fact Sheet released by the Department of Homeland Security
 16 on June 23, 2018, provides for family reunification only for adults “who are subject to removal”
 17 so that they may be “reunited with their children for the purposes of removal.” See Fact Sheet:

 19 <https://content.govdelivery.com/accounts/USDHS/bulletins/1f98ad8>, attached hereto as Ex. 35.
 20 In other words, parents who hope to be quickly reunited with their children must abandon their 21 own asylum claims and agree to withdraw their children’s claims to remain in the United States.

3 101. Parents have felt compelled to act accordingly. On June 24, 2018, a DHS official 4 stated that parents separated from their children “were quickly given the option to sign 5 paperwork leading to their deportation. Many chose to do so.” The June 24, 2018 tweet is 6 available at <https://twitter.com/jacobsoboroff/status/1010862394103328771>, and attached
 7 hereto as Ex. 37. This is consistent with other accounts of parents signing voluntary deportation
 8 paperwork out of “desperation” because officials had suggested that it would lead to faster
 9 reunification with their children. See, e.g., Jay Root and Shannon Najmabadi, Kids in exchange

14 102. Likewise, on June 24, 2018, a senior administrative official speaking on the 15 condition of anonymity confirmed that defendants do not plan to reunite families until after a 16 parent has lost his or her deportation case, effectively punishing parents who may otherwise 17 pursue an asylum claim or other relief request and creating tremendous pressure to abandon such 18 claims so that parents may be reunited with kids. See Maria Saccherri, Michael Miller and

3 103. In recent days, President Trump has proposed deporting immigrants without 4 hearing or legal process as his favored alternative. On June 21, 2018 President Trump stated:
 5 “We shouldn’t be hiring judges by the thousands, as our ridiculous immigration laws demand,
 6 we should be changing our laws, building the Wall, hire Border Agents and Ice and not let people
 7 come into our country based on the legal phrase they are told to say as their password.” See 8 <https://mobile.twitter.com/realDonaldTrump/status/1009770941604298753>.

10 104. On June 24, 2018, President Trump again proposed that immigrants who cross
 11 into the United States should be sent back immediately without due process or an appearance
 12 before a judge: “We cannot allow all of these people to invade our Country. When somebody 13 comes in, we must immediately, with no Judges or Court Cases, bring them back from where 14 they came. Our system is a mockery to good immigration policy and Law and Order. Most 15 children come without parents...” See Katie Rogers and Sheryl Gay Stolberg, Trump Calls for

 21 judges, and going through a long and complicated legal process, is not the way to go – will

 4 confirmed that CPB's halt of prosecution referrals "is a temporary solution. This isn't going to 5 last. . . This will only last a short amount of time, because we're going to run out of space, we're 6 going to run out of resources to keep people together." Secretary Sanders reiterated: "We're 7 not changing the policy . . . We're simply out of resources. And at some point, Congress has to 8 do what they were elected to do, and that is secure our border, that is stop the crime coming into 9 our country." Secretary Sanders dodged questions regarding President Trump's recent 10 suggestion that immigrants be afforded no due hearing or due process prior to deportation. See

16 F. Defendants' Policy Causes Devastating Harm To Children and Parents

17 107. Separating families when a child's safety is not at risk causes immediate, acute 18 trauma as well as foreseeable long term damage and harm to both the parents and the children.
 19 The negative effects and consequences of the Policy are likely to be long-lasting and in some 20 cases debilitating.

21 108. Unless required to protect a child's safety, forced separation from their parents is 22 likely to cause immediate and extreme psychological harm to young children, and the resulting 23 cognitive and emotional damage can be permanent. Parental separation is a traumatic loss for 24 the child; as a result they are likely to experience post-traumatic symptoms such as nightmares,

1 and other manifestations of anxiety and depression, all of which are likely to increase in severity
2 the longer the separation lasts and lead to the potential development of problematic coping
3 strategies in both the near and long term. This trauma may be exacerbated for children who are 4 fleeing persecution or violence in their home countries.

6 109. Observations by those who have seen children recently separated pursuant to 7 Defendants' Policy suggest that conditions created by Defendants will further exacerbate the 8 separation trauma. By way of example, after touring a shelter along the Texas border to Mexico,
9 Dr. Colleen Kraft, President of the American Academy of Pediatrics, described a "screaming" 10 girl, "no older than 2" who could not be comforted because shelter workers had been told they 11 are not allowed to touch the children, not even to hold a crying child and convey some semblance
12 of compassion. See Immigrant children: What a doctor saw in a Texas shelter, The Washington
13 Post (June 17, 2018) available at https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/post-

16
17 110. These reports are also consistent with the observations of State employees who 18 recently interviewed separated children living in Seattle. Every child displayed significant 19 distress when relaying their experience and broke down when describing their separation. Some 20 reported ongoing nightmares, others were so traumatized they could not continue the brief

23 111. Similarly, parents who arrive together with their children at the U.S. border and 24 then are separated from their children by the U.S. government are likely to experience immediate 25 and acute psychological injury as a result. Under the Policy, many parents are being separated
26

1 from their children suddenly without the chance to prepare the child or even say goodbye,
2 without knowing where they or their children will be taken, without any guarantee of 3 reunification, and often without contact with their children or with long gaps in that contact.
4 When parents and children are allowed to speak, it is only briefly – ten minutes or so – by 5 telephone.

7 112. These otherwise fit parents are likely to experience deterioration of their mental 8 and physical health in the aftermath of the forcible separation from their children with symptoms
9 including anxiety, depression, PTSD, and other trauma-related disorders. In some cases, parental 10 trauma from separation from their children will become unbearable because their available 11 coping mechanisms may be overwhelmed by the sudden loss of the important role of parent and 12 protector of the child. Indeed, at least one parent, distraught after officials pried his 3-year-old 13 son from his arms, is reported to have committed suicide following the separation. See Nick
15 2018) available at https://www.washingtonpost.com/world/national-security/a-family-was-separated-at-the-border-and-this-distraught-father-took-his-own-life/2018/06/08/24e40b70-6b5d-11e8-9e38-24e693b38637_story.html?utm_term=.96a4606e47c7, attached hereto as Ex.
16
18
19 43.

20
21 113. These general observations were confirmed by interviewers who recently spoke 22 with mothers detained in a federal facility in King County, Washington. The mothers were 23 visibly upset, with some expressing panic and desperation, because they lacked information 24 about their children's safety and did not know whether or when they would see their children 25 again.

G. The Policy Is Expressly Intended to Use Traumatized Children and Families to Deter Migration of Latina/o Immigrants and for Political Leverage

114. Defendants have changed public positions on the Policy numerous times over the last few weeks, but what has remained consistent throughout is Defendants' unambiguous adoption of a policy at the Southwestern border that uses trauma as deterrence, and their insistence that Congress overhaul immigration laws to codify President Trump's immigration agenda, including building a wall at the U.S.-Mexico border. See JM Rieger, The Trump Administration Changed its Story on Family Separation no Fewer than 14 Times Before Ending the Policy (June 20, 2018) available at https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/the-fix/wp/2018/06/20/the-trump-administration-changed-its-story-on-family-separation-no-fewer-than-14-times-before-ending-the-policy/?utm_term=.6719a188344f, Ex. 44 (collecting contradictory statements). Confirmation of these two goals is reflected in statements from a year ago and continued even after issuance of the Executive Order.

115. As early as March 7, 2017, then-Secretary of DHS John Kelly confirmed that the Policy was intended to "to deter movement" along the Southwestern border. See Ex. 3. Later that year, a source who attended a DHS meeting to discuss ways to "deter immigrants from coming to the U.S. illegally" reported that the Policy was still being considered, but kept getting "bogged down" because of how "difficult and controversial it was." See Ex. 4.

116. On December 5, 2017, Kirstjen Nielsen replaced John Kelly as DHS Secretary.

117. On February 8, 2018, 75 members of Congress wrote a letter to DHS Secretary Nielsen expressing "deep[] concern that the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) is separating families, including parents and their minor children . . . along the U.S.-Mexico border." DHS' "reported justification of this practice as a deterrent to family migration suggests

1 a lack of understanding about the violence many families are fleeing in their home countries”
2 and “[m]ore pointedly, the pretext of deterrence is not a legally sufficient basis for separating
3 families.” The letter is attached hereto as Ex. 45.

5 118. The letter details two complaints filed in December 2017 that confirmed DHS
6 was “intentionally separating families for purposes of deterrence and punishment.” In particular,
7 the second complaint documented “instances of infants and toddlers as young as one and two 8 years old separated from their parents and rendered ‘unaccompanied’”—among these was “a 9 father separated from his one-year-old son, Mateo, despite presenting appropriate documents to 10 establish their relationship.” Id.

12 119. Attorney General Sessions has confirmed that the Policy is intended to deter other 13 families from entering the United States. For example, on April 6, 2018, he issued a warning to 14 immigrants crossing the Southwestern border that “illegally entering this country will not be 15 rewarded, but instead will be met with the full prosecutorial powers of the Department of Justice”
16 and children “will be separated from [their parents].” See Ex. 12.

18 120. In May 2018, DHS announced the results of its pilot at the El Paso border sector
19 from July to November 2017. Its report—later found to be inaccurate—further confirms that 20 deterrence is the primary purpose of the Policy. When asked about the Policy, DHS reported that 21 “[t]he number of illegal crossings between ports of entry of family units dropped by 64 percent.
22 This decrease was attributed to the prosecution of adults amenable to prosecution for illegal entry 23 while risking the lives of their children. Of note, the numbers began rising again after the 24 initiative was paused.” See Ex. 6. Notably, public reporting suggests that, based on DHS’ own 25 statistics, these numbers are wrong and that there was, in fact, a 64% increase in apprehensions.

8 121. On May 11, 2018, White House Chief of Staff John Kelly was interviewed by 9 National Public Radio. When asked whether he was in favor of the Policy, he acknowledged that 10 “the vast majority of the people that move illegally into United States are not bad people.
 11 They’re not criminals. They’re not MS-13. . . . They’re not bad people. They’re coming here
 12 for a reason. And I sympathize with the reason. . . . But a big name of the game is deterrence.”

 16 tough deterrent” but that “this is a technique that no one hopes will be used extensively or for 17 very long.” Id.

19 122. On June 5, 2018, Attorney General Sessions was asked whether it was “absolutely 20 necessary” to “separate parents from children when they are detained or apprehended at the 21 border.” He responded, “yes” and “[i]f people don’t want to be separated from their children, 22 they should not bring them with them. We’ve got to get this message out.” See Hugh Hewitt,

 5 123. On June 14, 2018, Attorney General Sessions quoted a Bible verse ostensibly to 6 justify the Policy to leaders of the faith community and added: “Having children does not give 7 you immunity from arrest and prosecution.” See Adam Edelman, Sessions Cites Bible in Defense

11
 12 124. Public statements suggest that the Trump Administration intends to use the 13 Policy as a negotiating tool to force congressional acquiescence to its proposed immigration
 14 legislation. For example, President Trump tweeted on May 26, 2018 that Democrats should “end 15 the horrible law that separates children from there [sic] parents once they cross the Border.” The 16 May 26, 2018 tweet is available at 17 <https://twitter.com/realDonaldTrump/status/1000375761604370434>, and attached hereto as Ex.
 18 51.

 20 125. On May 29, 2018 Senior Advisor to the President Stephen Miller confirmed that 21 families are intentionally being traumatized for political gain: “If we were to have those 22 [Republican sponsored] fixes in federal law, the migrant crisis emanating from Central America 23 would largely be solved in a very short period of time,” and “[f]amilies would then therefore be 24 able to be kept together and could be sent home expeditiously and safely.” See Ted Hesson,

1 <https://www.politico.com/story/2018/05/29/stephen-miller-democrats-border-574537>, attached
 2 hereto as Ex. 52.

3 126. On June 16, 2018, President Trump confirmed that he is using the Policy to push 4 lawmakers to enact immigration legislation more in line with his own agenda: “Democrats can 5 fix their forced family breakup at the Border by working with Republicans on new legislation.”
 6 See Kate Sullivan, Trump suggests separation of families at border is a negotiating tool (June 7 16, 2018) available at https://www.cnn.com/2018/06/16/politics/trump-separation-families-
 8 negotiating-tool/index.html, attached hereto as Ex. 53.

10 127. On June 18, 2018, President Trump complained that “[w]e have the worst 11 immigration laws in the entire world. Nobody has such sad, such bad and actually, in many 12 cases, such horrible and tough – you see about child separation, you see what’s going on there.”
 13 See Ex. 19. He suggested, “[i]f the Democrats would sit down, instead of obstructing, we could 14 have something done very quickly, good for the children, good for the country, good for the 15 world. It could take place quickly.” Id. But in the meantime, he stated, “The United States 16 will not be a migrant camp and it will not be a refugee holding facility, it won’t be.” Id.

18 128. On June 18, 2018, in remarks before the National Sheriffs’ Association, Attorney
 19 General Sessions also suggested that if lawmakers would simply acquiesce to President Trump’s 20 demands to fund a wall on the Southwestern border, Defendants would stop separating families:
 21 “We do not want to separate parents from their children,” “[i]f we build the wall, if we pass 22 legislation to end the lawlessness, we won’t face these terrible choices.” See Ex. 20.

24 129. DHS Secretary Nielsen also linked the Policy with demands the Administration 25 has made on Congress: “We are enforcing the laws passed by Congress, and we are doing all 26

1 that we can in the executive branch to protect our communities. It is now time that Congress act
2 to fix our broken immigration system.” See Ex. 21.

3 H. Defendants’ Family Separation Policy Targets Immigrant Families Based on Their 4 National Origin

5 130. Defendants’ Policy is directed only at “Southwest Border crossings” (see Ex. 13), 6 the majority of which consist of immigrants from Latin America. Indeed, in its reports on recent 7 “Southwest Border Apprehensions,” CBP only tracks family unit apprehensions for immigrants
8 from El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and Mexico. See U.S. Border Patrol Southwest Border
9 Apprehensions by Sector FY2018, available at https://www.cbp.gov/newsroom/stats/usbp-sw-
10 border-apprehensions, attached hereto as Ex. 54. Defendants do not track whether the Policy is 11 impacting family unit migration from any other countries.

13 131. Defendants’ stated rationale for adopting the Policy—i.e., to deter migration—is 14 ineffective and not a legitimate law enforcement tactic. Rather than deter migration, the number
15 of families and unaccompanied children apprehended has steadily increased since Defendants 16 have implemented the Policy. According to Defendants’ own statistics, in March 2018, the 17 number of families apprehended at the Southwestern border was 37,385; in April 2018, 38,278;
18 and in May 2018, 40,344. See Ex. 8. The number of family units arriving at ports of entry 19 determined to be inadmissible also stayed relatively stable; in March 2018, the number was 20 5,162, in April, 5,445, and in May 4,718. Id.

22 132. Defendants also report that U.S. border agents made more than 50,000 arrests in 23 each of the months of March, April and May 2018—“an indication that escalating enforcement 24 tactics by the Trump Administration—including separating immigrant parents from their 25 children—has not had an immediate deterrent effect.” See Nick Miroff, Border arrests exceed

 6 133. On May 23, 2018, Steven Wagner, Acting Secretary of the Administration for 7 Children and Families testified before a Senate committee, stating: “In FY 2017, 84 percent of 8 [unaccompanied alien minors] referred to ORR came from Honduras, Guatemala, and 9 El Salvador. To date in FY 2018, 93 percent of referred children come from those countries.” A 10 copy of the Wagner Statement is attached as Ex. 56.

11 134. On April 6, 2018, President Trump signed a memorandum ordering agencies to 12 “expeditiously end” the practice of “catch and release,” a pejorative phrase that refers to the 13 practice of allowing immigrants to be released into the community pending resolution of their 14 immigration cases. See Jesse Byrnes, Trump signs memo ordering end to ‘catch and release’
 15 practices, The Hill, available at http://thehill.com/homenews/administration/382054-trump-
 16 signs-memo-ordering-end-to-catch-and-release-practices, attached hereto as Ex. 57. For 17 example, the memo orders DHS to submit a report within 45 days “detailing all measures that 18 their respective departments have pursued or are pursuing to expeditiously end ‘catch and 19 release’ practices.” Id. It also requests “a detailed list of all existing facilities, including military 20 facilities, that could be used, modified, or repurposed to detain aliens for violations of 21 immigration law” and specifically directs Attorney General Sessions and DHS Secretary 22 Nielsen to identify any resources “that may be needed to expeditiously end ‘catch and release’ 23 practices.” Id.

1 135. The Policy—announced shortly thereafter—targets only the immigrants at the 2 Southwestern border, the vast majority of whom are from Latin American countries. See Ex. 12.

3 136. In stark contrast to Defendants’ Southwestern border actions, DHS’ updated
4 Northern Border Strategy, announced on June 12, 2018, aims “to facilitate the flow of lawful 5 cross-border trade and travel, and strengthen cross-border community resilience.” Although the 6 Northern Border Strategy is intended, in part, to “safeguard our northern border against terrorist 7 and criminal threats,” the strategy does not demand prosecution and family separation for all
8 unauthorized entrants at the northern border of the United States. See Department of Homeland 9 Security Northern Border Strategy available at

14 137. The Policy is intended to target immigrants by their country of origin and is 15 consistent with the demonstrated anti-Latina/o bias repeatedly shown by President Trump.

16 138. Members of the Trump Administration repeatedly disparaged Latin American 17 countries during the presidential campaign and during the Trump presidency. When Mr. Trump 18 announced his campaign at Trump Tower in June 2015, he announced: “When Mexico sends its 19 people, they’re not sending their best. . . . They’re bringing drugs. They’re bringing crime.
20 They’re rapists.” See Z. Byron Wolf, Trump basically called Mexicans rapists again, available
21 at <https://www.cnn.com/2018/04/06/politics/trump-mexico-rapists/index.html>, attached hereto
22 as Ex. 59. In that same speech, he first proposed the idea of building a wall along the 23 Southwestern border and “mak[ing] Mexico pay for that wall.”
25
26

1 139. During the first Republican presidential debate, then-candidate Trump again
 2 stated his distaste for immigrants from Mexico: “The Mexican government is much smarter,
 3 much sharper, much more cunning. And they send the bad ones over because they don’t want 4 to pay for them. They don’t want to take care of them.” See Andrew O’Reilly, At GOP debate,

9 140. Soon after, on August 25, 2015, then-candidate Trump refused to answer questions
 10 about immigration posed by Jorge Ramos, a Mexican-American and the top news anchor at 11 Univision, a Spanish-language news network. After sending his bodyguard to physically remove 12 Mr. Ramos, then-candidate Trump derisively told Mr. Ramos to “Go back to Univision.” See Phillip 13 Rucker, First, Trump booted Univision anchor Jorge Ramos out of his news conference. Then things

19 141. In May 2016, then-candidate Trump referred to anti-Trump protestors who 20 carried the Mexican flag as “criminals” and “thugs.” Donald Trump, “The protestors in New 21 Mexico were thugs who were flying the Mexican Flag.” The May 25, 2016 tweet is attached
 22 hereto as Ex. 62. Donald Trump, “Many of the thugs that attacked peaceful Trump supporters 23 in San Jose were illegals.” The June 4, 2016 tweet is attached hereto as Ex. 63.

142. In June 2016, then-candidate Trump impugned the integrity of a federal judge presiding over a lawsuit against one of his businesses. Trump commented that Judge Gonzalo Curiel's rulings against him "[H]as to do with perhaps that I'm very, very strong on the border. . . . Now, he is Hispanic, I believe. He is a very hostile judge to me." See Jose A. DelReal and Katie Zezima, Trump's personal, racially tinged attacks on federal judge alarm legal experts, The Washington Post (June 1, 2016) available at https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/2016/06/01/437ccae6-280b-11e6-a3c4-0724e8e24f3f_story.html?utm_term=.c82ec7177a13, attached hereto as Ex. 64.

143. U.S. House Speaker Paul Ryan publicly rebuked his own party's presumptive presidential nominee, stating: "Claiming a person can't do the job because of their race is sort of like the textbook definition of a racist comment. I think that should be absolutely disavowed. It's absolutely unacceptable." See Tom Kertscher, Donald Trump's racial comments about Hispanic judge in Trump University case, Politifact (June 8, 2016) available at <http://www.politifact.com/wisconsin/article/2016/jun/08/donald-trumps-racial-comments-about-judge-trump-un/>, attached hereto as Ex. 65.

144. In an interview with CBS News on June 5, 2016, then-candidate Trump reiterated his views, noting that "[Judge Curiel]'s a member of a club or society very strongly, pro-Mexican, which is all fine. But I say he's got bias." See CBS News, Transcript of Face the Nation (June 5, 2016) available at <https://www.cbsnews.com/news/face-the-nation-transcripts-june-5-2016-trump/>, attached hereto as Ex. 66. 4 145. On August 21, 2015, two men urinated on a sleeping Latino man and then beat him
 5 with a metal pole. They later told police that “Donald Trump was right; all these illegals need to 6 be deported.” When asked about the incident, then-candidate Trump failed to condemn the men,
 7 instead describing them as “passionate.” See Adrian Walker, ‘Passionate’ Trump fans behind

 12 stated, “[i]t would be a shame . . . I will say that people who are following me are very passionate.
 13 They love this country and they want this country to be great again. They are passionate.” Id.

14 146. In October 2016, during a presidential debate, then-candidate Trump responded
 15 to a question about immigration by stating: “We have some bad hombres here and we’re going

21 147. On January 27, 2017, newly-inaugurated President Trump and Mexico’s
 22 President Peña Nieto discussed President Trump’s proposal for a border wall over the phone.
 23
 25
 26

1 During that transcribed conversation, President Trump again referred to “hombres” stating:
 2 “You have some pretty tough hombres in Mexico that you may need help with, and we are

 4 a good job of knocking them out.” See Greg Miller et. al., Full Transcripts of Trump’s Calls

11 148. In August 2017, President Trump pardoned Joe Arpaio, the former Arizona
 12 sheriff who oversaw operations that consistently targeted and harassed Latino residents in 13 Maricopa County. After a thorough investigation, the U.S. Department of Justice issued a report
 14 in 2011 finding that Mr. Arpaio’s office had committed numerous civil rights violations by, inter
 15 alia, conducting immigration sweeps that routinely violated the Fourth Amendment; detaining
 16 Latino residents based on fabricated charges; placing Spanish-speaking inmates in solitary
 17 confinement as punishment for not speaking English; refusing to accept requests for basic 18 services written in Spanish; pressuring Latino inmates to sign deportation forms; and referring 19 to Latino inmates as “wetback,” “Mexican bitches,” and “stupid Mexicans.” See Letter/Report, 20 attached hereto as Ex. 71. The report found that Mr. Arpaio’s own actions “promoted a culture 21 of bias in his organization and clearly communicated to his officers that biased policing would 22 not only be tolerated, but encouraged.” Id.

1 149. A federal judge ruled twice that Mr. Arpaio's deputies unlawfully deprived
 2 detainees of food and medical care, and tortured inmates by locking them in unbearably hot
 3 solitary confinement cells in violation of the Eighth Amendment. See Mark Joseph Stern, White

 7 Mr. Arpaio's office were Latinos detained on suspicion of being undocumented. Id. In issuing
 8 the pardon, President Trump stated that Mr. Arpaio "has done a lot in the fight against illegal 9 immigration. He's a great American patriot and I hate to see what has happened to him." Id.

11 150. In February 2018, President Trump referred to nations such as El Salvador as 12 "shithole countries" in a meeting with lawmakers, and suggested that the U.S. preferred to

 16 1822692216, attached hereto as Ex. 73.
 17

18 151. That same month, President Trump said of undocumented immigrants from 19 Mexico and Central America, "You know they're bad. They're pouring in from El Salvador, 20 Honduras, Mexico, all over." See Ex. 73. He added, "These countries are not our friends." Id.
 21

22 152. In April 2018, President Trump expressed repeated frustration with immigration
 23 numbers at the Southwestern border, and made a number of racially charged comments around 24 the time he issued the memorandum directing DHS Secretary Nielsen and Attorney General 25

1 Sessions to end catch-and-release practices. For example, President Trump again insinuated that 2 Mexican immigrants are rapists. See Ex. 59.

3 153. President Trump also commented multiple times about a “caravan” of Central 4 American immigrants aiming to reach the Southwestern border, many of whom planned on 5 seeking asylum. He stated that “Mexico has the absolute power to not let these large ‘Caravans’
6 of people enter our country.” See Edgard Garrido, Migrant ‘caravan’ that angers Trump nears

10 contingent of Latin American immigrants traveling through Mexico. Id. President Trump stated:
11 “If it reaches our border, our laws are so weak and so pathetic . . . it’s like we have no border.”
12 See Klein, Starr, Shoichet, Trump: ‘We’re going to be guarding our border with the military’

15 hereto as Ex. 75. He added, “[t]he caravan makes me very sad that this could happen to the 16 United States.” Id.

17 154. After expressing frustration regarding the “caravan,” President Trump announced 18 that he planned to dispatch U.S. troops to guard the U.S.-Mexico border because “we have very 19 bad laws for our border” so “we’re going to do some things militarily, until we can have a wall
20 and proper security—we’re going to be guarding our border with the military.” See Ex. 75.

155. On June 19, 2018, President Trump tweeted that without strong border policies “illegal immigrants” would “pour into and infest our Country.” See <https://twitter.com/realDonaldTrump/status/1009071403918864385>.

156. On June 20, 2018, shortly after signing the Executive Order, at a rally in Duluth, Minnesota amid chants of “Build the Wall,” President Trump repeated: “They’re not sending their finest. We’re sending them the hell back. That’s what we’re doing.” See Katie Rogers and Jonathan Martin, ‘We’re Sending them the Hell Back,’ Trump Says of Securing the Country’s Borders, The New York Times (June 20, 2018) available at <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/06/20/us/politics/trump-minnesota-rally.html>, attached hereto as Ex. 76.

I. The Policy Has Been Widely Denounced by the United Nations, Professional Organizations, Public Figures, and Religious Leaders

157. The United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights has called for an end to the Policy, saying, “The thought that any state would seek to deter parents by inflicting such abuse on children is unconscionable. I call on the United States to immediately end the practice of forcible separation of these children.” See Stephanie Nebehay, U.N. rights boss calls for an end to Trump’s policy of family separation, (June 18, 2018) available at <https://www.reuters.com/article/us-un-rights/un-rights-boss-calls-for-end-to-trumps-policy-of-family-separation-idUSKBN1JE0NA>, attached hereto as Ex. 77. A spokesperson for the U.N. also said that the Policy “amounts to arbitrary and unlawful interference in family life, and is a serious violation of the rights of the child.” See Nick Cumming-Bruce, Taking Migrant Children From Parents Is Illegal, U.N. Tells U.S., available at 1 <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/06/05/world/americas/us-un-migrant-children-families.html>,

 2 attached hereto as Ex. 78.

3 158. Numerous professional and religious organizations have also denounced the 4 Policy. On June 12, 2018, the American Bar Association (ABA) expressed “strong opposition”
 5 to Defendants’ “separation of children from their parents when arriving at the southern border,” 6 calling the practice “unfair, inhumane, and, in the end, ineffective.” See ABA letter attached
 7 hereto as Ex. 79 (noting “that the primary purpose of the ‘zero tolerance’ Policy is to serve as a
 8 deterrent for migrant parents” at the Southwestern border, and “that family separation is not a 9 collateral consequence of regular law enforcement” but “an explicitly intentional goal.”).

10 159. The Policy has also been widely condemned by the medical community. For 11 example, the American Association of Pediatrics (AAP) recently denounced Defendants’ Policy, 12 writing: “Separating children from their parents contradicts everything we stand for as 13 pediatricians – protecting and promoting children’s health. In fact, highly stressful experiences,

 18 163. At least one federal court has found that Defendants' practice of separating 19 immigrant families "arbitrarily tears at the sacred bond between parent and child" and "is brutal, 20 offensive, and fails to comport with traditional notions of fair play and decency." Ms. L. v. U.S

J. Defendants' Policy Harms the States' Sovereign Interests

164. Defendants' Policy and subsequent actions harm the States' sovereign interests by interfering with their licensing authority and rendering the States unable to honor their own policies favoring family unity.

165. Even for residential facilities that are federally funded, States have sovereign responsibility for the licensing, inspection, and monitoring of out-of-home care providers (i.e., providers who care for children away from their parents). The States conduct periodic licensing monitoring visits to these facilities, meeting with the staff and children in their care, to ensure that these facilities meet minimum safety standards, including background check approvals, facility safety standards, and ensuring the facilities provide necessary and appropriate care to the children.

166. For example, in Washington State, any agency that cares for children on a 24-hour basis away from their parents must be licensed. See, e.g. RCW 74.15.020, 74.15.090. Under RCW 74.15.030(7) and .080, the state's department of social and health services has the authority and duty to access and inspect the facility's records for the purpose of determining whether or not there is compliance with state licensing requirements. See also ch. 388-145 WAC (the licensing requirements for group homes and youth shelters). These licensing requirements apply to all private facilities, even those operated by a private agency contracting with the federal government.

167. In the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, no "agency or institution of the federal government" may operate a "[foster care] placement agency, group care facility, or temporary shelter facility" for children unless licensed by the Department of Early Education and Care

1 (EEC). Mass. Gen. Laws Ch. 15D, § 1A, 6. EEC “may, at any reasonable time, visit and inspect
2 any facility” subject to such licensure. Id., § 9.

3 168. Likewise, New York State has licensing and oversight responsibilities over the 4 facilities where immigrant children who are separated from their parents are placed. Specifically,
5 the Bureau of Child Welfare and Community Services (“CWCS”) of the New York State Office
6 of Children and Family Services (“OCFS”) has regulatory, licensing, inspection and supervisory 7 authority over residential programs that care for foster children. N.Y. Soc. Serv. Law §§ 460-b, 8 460-c, 462-a. OCFS issues operating certificates to non-profit agencies in New York State that 9 provide residential care in a congregate setting to UACs, including the children who have been 10 separated from their parents at the border. OCFS, as the licensing state agency of child residential
11 programs in New York, retains the authority to conduct building, equipment, fire and safety 12 inspections of these facilities. Also, OCFS has the statutory authority to establish regulatory 13 standards for the certification or approval of foster homes, and the authority of an agency to 14 certify or approve foster homes. N.Y. Soc. Serv. Law §§ 378, 460-a, N.Y. Not-for-Profit Corp.
15 Law § 404(b). Provider agencies in New York that contract with ORR place UACs in foster 16 homes that the agency has approved or certified pursuant to this authority from the state.

18 169. In the State of North Carolina, “[n]o person shall operate, establish or provide 19 foster care for children or receive and place children in residential care facilities, family foster
20 homes, or adoptive homes without first applying for a licensure to the Department” of Health 21 and Human Services]. N.C. Gen. Stat. § 131D-10.3. In addition to other powers and duties, the 22 North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services also has the authority to “[i]nspect
25
26

1 facilities and obtain records, documents, and other information necessary to determine
 2 compliance with” North Carolina law and regulations. Id. § 131D-10.6(6).

3 170. Likewise, Delaware licenses, registers, and monitors all residential and 4 nonresidential childcare facilities including . . . child placement and adoption agencies . . .”
 5 29 Del. C. § 9003 (7). Delaware’s monitoring scheme includes the right of entrance, inspection,
 6 and access to the papers of childcare facilities operating within Delaware and entities that operate
 7 within Delaware and place children in other states. 31 Del. C. §§ 343, 344. In certain 8 circumstances, a violation of Delaware’s childcare licensing requirements may constitute a 9 criminal act. 31 Del. C. § 345.

11 171. Other States have similar licensing authority and statutory regimes. These 12 provisions are intended to protect children from substandard housing and care, and are essential 13 to the wellbeing of minors placed in facilities located in the States.

15 172. The United States’ Ex Parte Application for relief from the Flores Settlement is 16 a frontal attack on that sovereign interest. That request seeks rescission of Flores’s protections
 17 and a “determin[ation] that the Agreement’s state licensure requirement does not apply to ICE
 18 family residential facilities.” The United States has thus sought to extinguish state licensing 19 powers over federally contracted out-of-home care providers, leaving those facilities wholly 20 unregulated at the local level. The government’s attempt to modify the Flores settlement terms
 21 by removing States’ licensing authority and jurisdiction interferes with the States’ sovereign

24 173. Moreover, each of the States is required to respect family integrity absent a 25 finding that a parent is unfit or unavailable to care for a child. Here, the federal government has 26

1 intentionally separated parents from children and is leaving it to the States' court systems to 2 establish alternative guardianships for them, or relying on state-licensed foster care facilities to 3 care for the children, rendering the States unable to enforce the legal mandates and public
 4 policies that require keeping families together unless the best interests of the child dictate 5 otherwise.

7 174. For example, the State of Washington has a longstanding public policy affirming
 8 the importance of family integrity and the primacy of the parent-child relationship. Wash. Rev.
 9 Code § 13.34.020 “declares that the family unit is a fundamental resource of American life which 10 should be nurtured” and mandates “that the family unit should remain intact unless a child’s right
 11 to conditions of basic nurture, health, or safety is jeopardized.” Wash. Rev. Code § 26.09.002 12 likewise “recognizes the fundamental importance of the parent-child relationship to the welfare
 13 of the child” and requires “that the relationship between the child and each parent [] be fostered 14 unless inconsistent with the child’s best interests.” Similarly, Washington’s child abuse and 15 neglect law, contained in chapter 26.44 RCW, enshrines the state’s policy that “[t]he bond 16 between a child and his or her parent . . . is of paramount importance[.]” RCW 26.44.010. Under 17 Washington law, the state is justified to intervene in that relationship only when a child is 18 deprived of the right to conditions of minimal nurture, health, and safety.

20 175. Washington also has recognized that children in government custody have 21 substantive due process rights under the U.S. Constitution. See Braam v State of Washington, 22 150 Wn.2d 689, 81 P.3d 851 (2003) (foster children possess substantive due process rights).
 23 While these rights are not coextensive with parental rights in every context, Washington 24 recognizes a child’s constitutional rights “to be free from unreasonable risk of harm, including a

1 risk flowing from the lack of basic services, and a right to reasonable safety.” Id. The intentional
 2 exposure of a child to an unreasonable risk of harm, including physical or mental injury, violates 3 these rights.

4 176. Washington has also declared that practices that discriminate against any of its 5 inhabitants because of race, creed, color, or national origin are matters of public concern that 6 threaten the rights and proper privileges of the State and harm the public welfare, health, and 7 peace of the people. See Wash. Rev. Code § 49.60.010.

9 177. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts has long committed itself to the 10 promotion and safeguarding of the family unit. Massachusetts law, for example, notes that “the 11 family is the best source of child rearing,” 110 C.M.R. 1.02, and holds that “the policy of this 12 commonwealth [is] to direct its efforts, first, to the strengthening and encouragement of family 13 life for the care and protection of children.” Mass. Gen. Laws c. 119, § 1. Normally, therefore, 14 “the interest of the child is best served by a stable, continuous environment with his or her own 15 family.” Adoption of Frederick, 405 Mass. 1, 4 (1989). As a result, the Commonwealth allows 16 “state intervention into a family unit [to] be used only when it is clearly needed to protect a 17 child.” 110 C.M.R. 1.02.

19 178. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts has also long protected the civil rights and 20 liberties of its residents, outlawing practices that harm or discriminate individuals based on race,
 21 color, religious creed, or national origin. See, e.g., Mass. Gen. Laws c. 151B, § 4; c. 151C, § 2; 22 c. 76, § 5; and c. 272, § 98.

24 179. The State of Oregon has statutorily codified a number of deeply-rooted public
 25 concerns that are grossly undermined by defendants’ unlawful actions, thus harming Oregon’s 26

1 sovereign interests. Oregon recognizes the intrinsic value of family relationships and prioritizes
2 protecting them. For example, Or. Rev. Stat. § 419B.007 states the policy of Oregon is to 3 “preserve family life” by “stabilizing the family.” In addition, Oregon has declared there is a 4 “strong preference” that children live “with their own families.” Or. Rev. Stat. § 419B.090(5).
5 Similarly, custody determinations are based on the best interest of the child, including “[t]he 6 emotional ties between the child and other family members” as well as “[t]he desirability of 7 continuing an existing relationship.” Id. Oregon thus places great value on the parent-child 8 relationship, on “interaction, companionship, interplay and mutuality, that fulfilled the child’s 9 psychological needs for a parent” in addition to a child’s physical needs. Or. Rev. Stat. § 109.119 10 (10)(a).

12 180. Oregon further recognizes that children are individuals who have legal rights.
13 Among those rights are “freedom from...emotional abuse or exploitation.” Or. Rev. Stat. §
14 419B.090(1). To that end, Oregon has enacted laws and policies to protect children’s rights. For 15 example, “[i]t is the policy of the State of Oregon to safeguard and promote each child’s right to 16 safety, stability and well-being and to safeguard and promote each child’s relationships with 17 parents, siblings, grandparents, other relatives and adults with whom a child develops healthy 18 emotional attachments.” Or. Rev. Stat. § 419B.090(3).

20 181. Moreover, Oregon acknowledges the importance of due process rights afforded 21 to parents facing “interference” with their right to “direct the upbringing of their children” 22 because the policy of Oregon is to “guard the liberty interest of parents protected by the 23 Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution and to protect the rights and interests 24 of children.” Or. Rev. Stat. § 419B.090(4). Oregon requires appointment of legal counsel for

1 parents whenever due process so requires, and courts must consider “[t]he duration of and degree
 2 of invasiveness of the interference with the parent-child relationship” that could result from legal 3 proceedings as well as the “effects” the proceedings may have on later proceedings or events
 4 that may interfere with the parent-child relationship. Or. Rev. Stat. § 419B.205(1). Pursuant to 5 Or. Rev. Stat. § 419B.165, a child taken into custody must be released to a parent unless a court 6 order prevents it or there is probable cause to believe the child may be endangered by immediate 7 release.

9 182. When parents and children are separated, Oregon prioritizes a child’s existing 10 relationships in considering placement alternatives. For example, “there shall be a preference 11 given to placement of the child or ward with relatives and persons who have a caregiver
 12 relationship with the child.” Or. Rev. Stat. § 419B.192(1). Oregon law also recognizes the value 13 of sibling relationships and requires state social agencies to make “diligent efforts” to keep 14 siblings together when they have been separated from their parents. Or. Rev. Stat. § 15 419B.192(2).

17 183. Children separated from families in Oregon are entitled to participate in age and 18 developmentally appropriate activities. Specifically, this includes activities that are reflective 19 of and promote “development of cognitive, emotional, physical and behavioral capacities that 20 are typical for an age or age group.” Or. Rev. Stat. § 419B.194(a)(A). Moreover, Oregon 21 requires appropriate activities for a specific child separated from family “based on the 22 developmental stages attained by the child.” Or. Rev. Stat. § 419B.194(a)(B). In making these 23 determinations, the “reasonable and prudent parent standard” applies. Or. Rev. Stat. §
 24 419B.194(b). The standard is characterized by “careful and sensible parental decisions that

1 maintain the health, safety and best interests of a child or ward while encouraging the emotional 2 and developmental growth of the child or ward...” Id.

3 184. Oregon has also codified anti-discrimination policies that protect all Oregon 4 residents from disparate treatment based on race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, national 5 origin, marital status or age. Or. Rev. Stat. § 659A.403(1). Further, it is unlawful for any person 6 to deny another full and equal accommodations, advantages, facilities, and privileges of any 7 place of public accommodation. Or. Rev. Stat. § 659A.403(3).

9 185. The State of California similarly has a long history of preserving the integrity of 10 the family unit and the parent-child relationship. For example, California Welfare and 11 Institutions Code section 11205 declares “the family unit is of fundamental importance to society 12 in nurturing its members,” and states “[e]ach family has the right and responsibility to provide 13 sufficient support and protection of its children.” California’s policy to “preserve and strengthen 14 a child’s family ties whenever possible” and to remove a child from the custody of his or her 15 parents “only when necessary for his or her welfare or for the safety and protection of the public”
16 is delineated in California Welfare and Institution Code section 201, subdivision (a), and section 17 16000, subdivision (a).

19 186. California’s interests in protecting the physical, emotional and psychological 20 health of minors and in preserving and fostering the parent-child relationship “are extremely 21 important interests that rise to the level of ‘compelling interests’ for purposes of constitutional 22 analysis.” American Academy of Pediatrics v. Lungren, 16 Cal. 4th 307, 348 (1997).
25
26

187. It is California policy that social services programs must prevent or reduce inappropriate institutional care by providing community-based care, home-based care, or other forms of less intensive care. Cal. Welf. & Inst. Code § 13003(4).

188. In California, per statute, any out-of-home placement of children must be in the “least restrictive family setting,” and should promote “normal childhood experiences that [are] suited to meet the child's or youth's individual needs.” Cal. Welf. & Inst. Code § 16000(a).

189. California also has robust constitutional and statutory protections against discrimination. For example, the California Constitution protects against discrimination on the basis of race, creed, color or national or ethnic origin. Cal. Const. art. I, § 8. California law also protects against discrimination on the basis of ancestry, citizenship, primary language, and immigration status. Cal. Civ. Code § 51. California is also committed to developing strategic policies and plans regarding health issues affecting immigrants and refugees. Cal. Health & Saf. Code § 131019.5.

190. The State of New Mexico’s laws embody a public policy dedicated to the preservation of the family unit. NMSA 1978, Sec. 32A-1-3 (2009). To “the maximum extent possible, children in New Mexico shall be reared as members of a family unit.” Id. See also NMSA 1978, Section 40-15-3 (2005) (“It is the policy of the state that its laws and programs shall: support intact, functional families and promote each family's ability and responsibility to raise its children; strengthen families in crisis and at risk of losing their children, so that children can remain safely in their own homes when their homes are safe environments and in their communities...help halt the breakup of the nuclear family[.]”). Further, New Mexico’s Family Preservation Act clearly indicates the purpose of the Act is to “confirm the state’s policy of

1 support for the family” as a “institution” and that the Act is “intended to serve as a benchmark 2 against which other legislation may be measured to assess whether it furthers the goals of 3 preserving and enhancing families in New Mexico.” NMSA 1978, Section 40-15-2 (2005). New 4 Mexico case law affirms there is a clearly established right to familial integrity embodied in the 5 Fourteenth Amendment. Oldfield v. Benavidez, 1994-NMSC-006, ¶ 14, 116 N.M. 785.

7 191. The New Mexico Children’s Code also ensures that New Mexican parents have 8 substantial due process protections prior to losing the right to care of and custody of their own
 9 children. See NMSA 1978, Section 32A-4-28. The sole fact that a parent is incarcerated is not 10 a basis for terminating parental rights. Id. A parent's fundamental liberty interest in the care, 11 custody, and management of their children is well established. See State ex rel. Children, Youth
 12 & Families Dep't v. Mafin M., 2003–NMSC–015, ¶ 18, 133 N.M. 827, 70 P.3d 1266; State ex
 13 rel. Children, Youth & Families Dep't v. Joe R., 1997–NMSC–038, ¶ 29, 123 N.M. 711, 945
 14 P.2d 76. “[T]he parent-child relationship is one of basic importance in our society ... sheltered
 15 by the Fourteenth Amendment against the State's unwarranted usurpation, disregard, or 16 disrespect.” State ex rel. Children, Youth & Families Dep't v. Anne McD., 2000–NMCA–020, ¶
 17 22, 128 N.M. 618, 995 P.2d 1060 (alteration in original) (internal quotation marks and citation 18 omitted). Thus, we have recognized that process is due when a proceeding affects or interferes 19 with the parent-child relationship. State ex rel. Children, Youth & Families Dep't v. Stella P., 20 1999–NMCA–100, ¶ 14, 127 N.M. 699, 986 P.2d 495; State ex rel. Children, Youth & Families
 21 Dep't v. Rosa R., 1999–NMCA–141, ¶ 13, 128 N.M. 304, 992 P.2d 317 (recognizing that 22 constitutionally adequate procedures must be in place before the State can investigate or 23 terminate the parent-child relationship).

1 192. New Mexico custody determinations are also driven by the best interests of the 2 child. See Schuermann v. Schuermann, 1980-NMSC-027, ¶ 6, 94 N.M. 81 (“In any proceeding
 3 involving custody, the courts' primary concern and consideration must be for the child's best
 4 interests.”) (citing NMSA 1978, Section 40-4-9(A) (1977)). “In any case in which a judgment
 5 or decree will be entered awarding the custody of a minor, the district court shall, if the minor is 6 under the age of fourteen, determine custody in accordance with the best interests of the child.”
 7 Id.

9 193. The laws of the State of New Mexico dictate that the best interests of a child, if 10 not properly within the custody of their parents, then lies in the custody of other family members.
 11 This policy is not only rooted in the best interests of children generally, but is designed to protect 12 both family unity as well as unique cultural heritage. Under the State’s Kinship Guardianship 13 Act, family members have a protected interest in raising a child when neither parent is available.
 14 NMSA 1978, Section 40-10B-2 (2001). Where the United States’ policy of family separation 15 does not provide a meaningful opportunity for children who are separated from their parents to 16 unite with other members of their family, it is direct contravention of the laws of this state and 17 the policy principles that underlying those laws. Further, because “a kinship guardian possesses 18 the same legal rights and responsibilities of a biological parent,” members of separated children’s 19 families should be afforded the opportunity to seek custody of their relatives. State ex rel.
 20 Children, Youth & Families Dep’t v. Djamila B., 2015-NMSC-003. To reiterate, any policy or 21 practice of the federal government that would serve to deny or otherwise disrupt any family
 22 member’s ability to take custody of their child relative is an affront to the laws of a sovereign
 23 state and the views of the people therein.

194. New Mexico’s Children’s Code is structured to promote child safety, recognize cultural diversity, and to ensure that civil and criminal justice systems are coordinated. NMSA 1978, Section 32A-1-3 (2009). All children are to be provided services sensitive to their cultural needs. Id.; see also NMSA 1978, Section 32A-18-1 (2009) (requiring cross-cultural training for all caregivers and service-providers under the children’s code). Families seeking asylum do not face allegations of abuse, neglect, or a crime that allows children to be removed from the custody of their parents under New Mexico law. In New Mexico, the mental and physical wellbeing of children is paramount. NMSA 1978, Section 32A-1-3(A)(2009). Children removed from the home in New Mexico because of a parent’s criminal behavior are afforded due process and representation of counsel in every proceeding other than probation. State v. Doe, 1977-NMCA-234, 91 N.M. 232, 572 P.2d 960, cert. denied 91 N.M. 249, 572 P.2d 1257 (1978). See also NMSA 1978, § 32A-1-7. State ex rel. Children, Youth & Families Dept. v. Lilli L., 1996-NMCA-014, ¶ 14, 121 N.M. 376. “[F]ailure to appoint either counsel or a guardian ad litem to protect the interests of a minor may constitute a denial of due process, thereby invalidating such proceedings.”

195. The State of New Jersey has a longstanding public policy confirming the importance of family integrity and the primacy of the parent-child relationship. New Jersey law declares that “the preservation and strengthening of family life is a matter of public concern as being in the interest of the general welfare.” N.J. Stat. Ann. § 30:4C-1(a). It also includes a mandate “to make reasonable efforts ... to preserve the family in order to prevent the need for removing the child” from his or her parents, and to return the child safely to his or her parents if possible. N.J. Stat. Ann. § 30:4C-11.1. In determining whether removal of a child is required,

1 “the health and safety of the child shall be of paramount concern to the court.” N.J. Stat. Ann.
 2 § 30:4C-11.2. Moreover, any proceeding which may result in even a temporary loss of custody
 3 of a child implicates a parent’s state constitutional right to appointed counsel. In re
 4 Guardianship of Dotson, 72 N.J. 112, 123 (1976).

 6 196. New Jersey has also long protected the civil rights and civil liberties of its 7 residents, including by prohibiting discrimination on the basis of race, creed, color, or national 8 origin. See, e.g., N.J. Stat. Ann. § 10:5-12.

9 197. The State of Rhode Island has a longstanding public policy affirming the 10 importance of family integrity and the primacy of the parent-child relationship. For example, 11 R.I. Gen. Law § 42-72-2 (1979) declares that “the state has a basic obligation to promote, 12 safeguard and protect the social well-being and development of the children of the state through 13 a comprehensive program providing for” such items as “the strengthening of the family unit” 14 and “making the home safe for children by enhancing the parental capacity for good child care 15 and services to children and their families to prevent the unnecessary removal of children from 16 their homes”. See R.I. Gen. Laws § 42-72-2 (1979).

 18 198. Rhode Island has declared that practices that discriminate against any of its 19 persons within the state on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, disability, age, or country of 20 ancestral origin are matters of public concern that threaten the rights and proper privileges of the 21 State and harm the public welfare, health, and peace of the people. See. R.I. Gen. Laws § 42-22 112-1 (1990).

 24 199. The State of Vermont has a fundamental, sovereign interest in the welfare of 25 children and families. Vermont has the authority and obligation to intervene where children are 26

1 “without proper parental care or subsistence, education, medical, or other care necessary for 2 [their] well-being.” 33 V.S.A. § 5102(3)(B). That duty includes bearing “such expenses for the 3 proper care, maintenance, and education of a child, including the expenses of medical, surgical,
 4 or psychiatric examination or treatment” as deemed necessary in connection with juvenile care
 5 proceedings. 33 V.S.A. § 5116(a). Vermont authorities owe a corollary duty “to preserve the 6 family and to separate a child from his or her parents only when necessary to protect the child
 7 from serious harm or in the interests of public safety.” 33 V.S.A. § 5101(a)(3).

9 200. Where children require foster care, Vermont strives to ensure their placement in 10 a healthy, loving environment through strict licensing requirements. See 33 V.S.A. § 4905; Vt.
 11 Admin. Code § 12-3-501. The Vermont Department of Children and Families closely regulates 12 not only the child’s physical environment but also the individuals who may be entrusted to care
 13 for the child. See Vt. Admin. Code §§ 12-3-501:20; 12-3-501:40.

15 201. Vermont has long protected its residents from discrimination on the basis of race,
 16 color, and national origin — irrespective of their citizenship status. See, e.g., 9 V.S.A. §§ 4502-
 17 4503 (public accommodations and housing); 21 V.S.A. § 495 (employment); and 13 V.S.A. §
 18 1455 (bias-motivated crimes). Vermont continues to reaffirm this commitment through 19 legislation. See, e.g., Vermont Act. 5 (S. 79) (March 28, 2017) (“In Vermont, we celebrate the 20 rich cultural heritage and diversity of our residents. . . . All Vermont residents should be free 21 from discrimination on the basis of their sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, marital status, 22 race, color, religion, national origin, immigration status, age, or disability.”).

24 202. The State of Minnesota’s public policy also affirms the importance of family
 25 integrity. For example, Minnesota Statutes section 252.32 declares that it is the State’s policy 26

1 “that all children are entitled to live in families that offer safe, nurturing, permanent relationships,
 2 and that public services be directed toward preventing the unnecessary separation of children
 3 from their families.” Minn. Stat. § 252.32, subd. 1. In addition, Minnesota Statutes section
 4 260C.001 recognizes the importance of “preserv[ing] and strengthen[ing] the child’s family ties
 5 whenever possible and in the child’s best interests” Minn. Stat. § 260C.001, subd. 1(b)(3).

7 203. Minnesota has also declared that the State’s public policy is that persons be free
 8 from discrimination in employment, housing and real property, public accommodations, public 9 services, and education on the basis of, among other things, race, color, creed, or national origin.
 10 Minn. Stat. § 363A.02, subd. 1(a). “Such discrimination threatens the rights and privileges of 11 the inhabitants of this state and menaces the institutions and foundations of democracy.” Id.
 12 subd. 1(b).

14 204. The State of Iowa has a longstanding policy that favors the protection of the 15 family unit. The State of Iowa only separates parents and children in the most exceptional of 16 circumstances because when we do so we “inflict[] a unique deprivation of a constitutionally 17 protected liberty interest[.]” In re M.S., 889 N.W.2d 675, 677-78 (Iowa Ct. App. 2016). “An 18 innocent man can be set free. The landowner can be justly compensated. The childless parent
 19 has no recourse.” Id. To that end, Iowa’s child welfare system strives to ensure that every child 20 receives the care, guidance, and control she needs in her own home, with her own parents, 21 whenever possible. Iowa Code § 232.1. “[T]he custody, care, and nurture of the child reside 22 first in the parents” and it is presumed to be in a child’s best interest to remain in parental custody.
 23 In re M.S., 889 N.W.2d 675, 677-78 (Iowa Ct. App. 2016); In re N.M., 528 N.W.2d 94, 96 (Iowa 24 1995). Under Iowa law, a family cannot be broken up simply upon proof that a parent has

1 “engaged in immoral or illegal conduct[.]” In re M.S., 889 N.W.2d 675, 677-78 (Iowa Ct. App.
 2 2016). “Indeed, due process would be violated if the State ‘attempt[ed] to force the breakup of 3 a natural family, over the objections of the parents and their children, without some showing of 4 unfitness’” as a parent. Id.

 6 205. The State of Iowa prohibits discrimination based on race, creed, color, national 7 origin, or religion. See Iowa Code chapter 216.

8 206. The State of Illinois has a longstanding policy recognizing the importance of 9 maintaining the family relationship.

10 207. The Illinois Juvenile Court Act of 1987, for example, declares that the State 11 should “secure for each minor subject hereto such care and guidance, preferably in his or her 12 own home, as will serve the safety and moral, emotional, mental, and physical welfare of the 13 minor and the best interests of the community; [and] preserve and strengthen the minor’s family 14 ties whenever possible, removing him or her from the custody of his or her parents only when 15 his or her safety or welfare or the protection of the public cannot be adequately safeguarded
 16 without removal.” 705 ILCS 405/1-2.

 18 208. The Illinois Abused and Neglected Child Reporting Act likewise instructs the 19 Department of Children and Family Services to “protect the health, safety, and best interests of 20 the child in all situations in which the child is vulnerable to child abuse or neglect, offer 21 protective services in order to prevent any further harm to the child and to other children in the 22 same environment or family, stabilize the home environment, and preserve family life whenever 23 possible.” 325 ILCS 5/2(a).
 26

1 209. In addition, the State of Illinois has a longstanding policy affirming the 2 importance of assisting the state's immigrant population.

3 210. The Illinois Attorney General Act declares that "[i]t is imperative that State
4 government is aware of the needs of the State's immigrant community and sensitive to the 5 barriers that may prevent them from seeking and obtaining services." 15 ILCS 205/6.6(a). The 6 Act further directs the Office of the Illinois Attorney General to "assist immigrants by increasing
7 accessibility to the Office and providing outreach services to the community, which will serve 8 to educate immigrants as to their rights and responsibilities as residents of the State." Id.

9 211. New York State has a strong interest in family unity. It is the long-established 10 policy and practice of the State to prioritize keeping a child with his or her parent or parents.
11 OCFS operates under the principal that families staying together is the most desired outcome for 12 children. Children are some of the most vulnerable residents in New York State and they best 13 develop their unique potential in a caring and healthy family environment with their birth parents
14 or other relatives. The State's first obligation is to help the family with services to prevent its 15 break-up, or to quickly reunite the family if the child has already been separated from his parents.
16 That is because the child's need for a normal family life will usually best be met with his or her 17 birth parent, and parents are entitled to bring up their own children unless the best interests of 18 the child would thereby be endangered. N.Y. Soc. Serv. Law § 384-b(1); N.Y. Exec. Law § 990.

19 212. New York State has a strong interest in promulgating and operating under non-20 discriminatory policies. In fact, the legislature has declared that non-discrimination is a guiding 21 principal of policy in New York State. New York's legislature has found that "the state has the 22 responsibility to act to assure that every individual within this state is afforded an equal
25
26

1 opportunity to enjoy a full and productive life and that the failure to provide such equal
 2 opportunity, whether because of discrimination, prejudice, intolerance or inadequate education, 3 training, housing or health care not only threatens the rights and proper privileges of its 4 inhabitants but menaces the institutions and foundation of a free democratic state and threatens 5 the peace, order, health, safety and general welfare of the state and its inhabitants.” N.Y. Exec.
 6 Law § 290. Thus, it is unlawful to discriminate against any person in New York State on the 7 basis of age, race, creed, color, national origin, sexual orientation, military status, sex, disability,
 8 predisposing genetic characteristics, familial status, marital status, domestic violence victim
 9 status, gender identity, transgender status, and gender dysphoria. N.Y. Exec. Law § 296; 9 N.Y.
 10 Comp. Codes R. & Regs. Tit. 9 § 466.13(c)(2)-(3).

 12 213. This principal of non-discrimination is also applied at the agency level. For 13 example, OCFS promulgates regulatory standards that expressly prohibit discrimination or 14 harassment of adults or children involved in child welfare programs and services based on race, 15 creed, color, national origin, age, sex, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression,
 16 marital status or disability. N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. Tit. 10 §§ 421.6, 423.4, 441.24

17
 18 214. The State of Maryland has longstanding policies affirming the importance of 19 family integrity and of protecting the wellbeing of children to the greatest extent 20 possible. Maryland’s Legislature has declared that “it is the policy of this State to promote 21 family stability, [and] to preserve family unity[.]” Md. Code Ann., Fam. Law § 4-22 401(1). Maryland’s statute governing custody proceedings for children in need of assistance is 23 intended to “conserve and strengthen the child’s family ties and to separate a child from the 24 child’s parents only when necessary for the child’s welfare,” and to “provide for the care,

1 protection, safety, and mental and physical development of” children. Md. Code Ann., Cts. &
 2 Jud. Proc. § 3-802(a)(3), (1). And under state law, various social programs must be administered
 3 to “preserve family unity” or “preserv[e] family integrity.” Md. Code Ann., Health-Gen. § 7-4 702(b); Code of Md. Regs. 07.02.01.01; Code of Md. Regs. 11.02.13.01.

 6 215. Maryland also has a public policy prohibiting discrimination against any of its 7 inhabitants because of their race, age, color, creed, or national origin, and has enacted anti-
 8 discrimination laws in a wide array of contexts, ranging from public accommodations, see Md.
 9 Code Ann., State Gov’t §§ 20-304, to employment, id. § 20-602, to residential housing, id. § 20-10 702. Maryland law also prohibits any person from retaliating against any person because he or 11 she has exercised or enjoyed the rights granted or protected by Maryland’s anti-discrimination 12 laws, id. § 20-708(2).

 14 216. It is the policy of the State of Maryland, “in the exercise of its police power for 15 the protection of the public safety, public health, and general welfare, for the maintenance of 16 business and good government, and for the promotion of the State’s trade, commerce, and 17 manufacturers,” to “assure all people equal opportunity in receiving employment” regardless of 18 race, color, religion, age, ancestry, or national origin. Md. Code Ann., State Gov’t § 20-602.

 20 217. The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has a longstanding public policy
 21 recognizing the significance of family integrity and the parent-child relationship. For example, 22 Pennsylvania law declares that “[t]he family is the basic institution in society in which our 23 children’s sense of self-esteem and positive self-image are developed and nurtured” and that 24 “[t]hese feelings and values are essential to a healthy, productive and independent life during 25 adulthood.” 62 P.S. § 2172(a)(1). Similarly, Pennsylvania’s Domestic Relations Act states that 26

1 “[t]he family is the basic unit in society and the protection and preservation of the family is of 2 paramount public concern.” 23 Pa.C.S. § 3102(a).

3 218. Pennsylvania law further recognizes that children who are separated from their 4 parents are deprived “of the unique bond which exists in the parent-child relationship, leaving 5 emotional scars on such children which may never fully heal” because “children are better off
6 emotionally when their needs can be met by their biological parents.” 62 P.S. § 2172(a). This 7 reality is recognized throughout Pennsylvania law. For instance, the Commonwealth’s Juvenile 8 Act seeks to “preserve the unity of the family whenever possible” and to separate “the child
9 from parents only when necessary for his welfare, safety or health or in the interests of public 10 safety.” 42 Pa.C.S. § 6301(b).

11 219. To separate a child from her family is among the most intrusive acts that the 12 government can initiate. North Carolina has long committed itself to separating families only as 13 a last resort, and only after exhausting other options, and taking all appropriate measures to 14 ensure the safety of children. In North Carolina, protection of the family unit is guaranteed not 15 only by the U.S. Constitution but also by North Carolina law. Adams v. Tessner, 354 N.C. 57, 16 60 (N.C. 2001). As a result, taking a child away from its parent requires “a showing that the 17 parent is unfit to have custody.” Id. at 62.

18 220. Parents of children in North Carolina have due process rights that require 19 “reasonable efforts [to be] made to prevent or eliminate the need for removal of the child” from 20 her parents, but only to allow removal when “necessary to protect the safety and health of the 21 child.” In re Dula, 143 N.C. App. 16, 17 (N.C. Ct. App. 2001). A parent’s “right to retain 22 custody of their child and to determine the care and supervision suitable for their child is a
25
26

1 fundamental liberty interest which warrants due process protection.” In re Montgomery, 311
 2 N.C. 101, 106 (N.C. 1984).

3 221. The people of North Carolina, in their Declaration of Rights, have stated that 4 “[n]o person . . . shall be subjected to discrimination by the State because of race, color, religion, 5 or national origin.” N.C. Const. Art. I, § 19. The State of North Carolina reiterates this 6 commitment in numerous statutes that make it unlawful to discriminate on the basis of, inter
 7 alia, race, color, religion, or national origin. See, e.g., N.C. Gen. Stat. §§ 75B-2, 41A-4, 95-151, 8 126-16, 143-422.2.

 10 222. In the State of Delaware, “parents have the primary responsibility for meeting
 11 the needs of their children and the State has an obligation to help them discharge this 12 responsibility . . .” 29 Del. C. § 9001. Delaware law explicitly declares that “the State has a 13 basic obligation to promote family stability and preserve the family as a unit...” Id. Delaware 14 law also recognizes that preservation of the family as a unit is “fundamental to the maintenance 15 of a stable, democratic society.” 10 Del. C. § 902(a). To that end, the state has directed its 16 courts, when possible consistent with the safety of family members, to ensure that homes 17 “remain unbroken.” Id. The express statutory child welfare policy of the State is to “serve to 18 advance the interests and secure the safety of the child, while preserving the family unit
 19 whenever the safety of the child is not jeopardized.” 16 Del. C. § 901.

 21 223. The State of Delaware has comprehensively prohibited discrimination based on 22 race and national origin in its laws, including the areas of public accommodations (6 Del. C. §
 23 4501, housing (6 Del. C. § 4601), and employment (19 Del. C. § 711). While children forcibly
 24 separated from their parents pursuant to the Trump Administration’s policy are not presently

located within any facility within the State of Delaware, a business entity that has facilitated such placements has a business location within the State of Delaware. Upon information and belief, this entity has assisted in placing children forcibly separated from their parents in other co-plaintiff States. Should separated children ultimately be placed within Delaware, its education and child welfare systems may be saddled with unanticipated fiscal and operational burdens due to the need to provide care for children who have been psychologically traumatized by involuntary separation from their parents. In order to ensure a complete injunction, to eliminate the chilling effect on the exercise of the fundamental rights of documented and undocumented immigrants presently residing in the State of Delaware, to protect the sovereignty of the State of Delaware by protecting its obligation to assist parents in meeting the needs of children, and to maintain the appropriate licensure and supervision of childcare facilities within the State, Delaware joins this action.

224. The District of Columbia is uniquely situated among the Plaintiff States, as it has no sovereign interest to claim as against the Federal Government. See Const. art. I, § 8, cl. 17; N. Pipeline Constr. Co. v. Marathon Pipe Line Co., 458 U.S. 50, 76 (1982); District of Columbia ex rel. Am. Combustion, Inc. v. Transamerica Ins. Co., 797 F.2d 1041, 1046 (D.C. Cir. 1986) (Congress acts “as sovereign of the District of Columbia”). Rather, the District asserts its quasi-sovereign interests and its authority to enforce its laws and uphold the public interest under its Attorney General Act, which was intended to incorporate the common law authority of states’ attorneys general. D.C. Code. § 1-301.81. See also Alfred L. Snapp & Son, Inc. v. Puerto Rico ex rel. Barez, 458 U.S. 592, 608 n.15 (1982) (recognizing that Puerto Rico “has a claim to represent its quasi-sovereign interests in federal court at least as strong as that of any State”).

K. Defendants' Policy Harms the States' Proprietary Interests

225. The Policy also harms the States' proprietary interests. ORR places thousands of unaccompanied minors with sponsors (adults who can care for the child during the pendency of immigration proceedings) in the States every year. In FY 2016, ORR placed 52,147 individual children in such placements nationwide. In FY 2017, there were 42,497 placements, and so far there have been almost 20,000 in FY 2018 (October-April). See Unaccompanied Alien Children Released to Sponsors by State (June 30, 2017) available at <https://www.acf.hhs.gov/orr/resource/unaccompanied-alien-children-released-to-sponsors-by-state>, attached hereto as Ex 88. These ORR data are inclusive of children who were separated as a result of the Policy.

226. The States are receiving and will continue to receive an increasing number of separated immigrant parents and children if Defendants are allowed to continue implementing their Policy. The federal government's separation of these families and transfer of separated persons into the States places increased burdens on state resources, particularly because of the acute trauma that children and parents have experienced due to Defendants' unlawful policy. Children who have been separated from their parents and are awaiting immigration proceedings (for example the adjudication of an asylum application or adjustment of status) are entitled to access a variety of state-funded programs. Providing the necessary services to address the legal, educational, physical, and psychological needs of parents and children who have been separated will burden the state systems. The following are non-exclusive examples of state systems that are impacted.

1 227. Courts. Many of the sponsors of these children will need to obtain guardianship
2 through the States’ juvenile and family courts. This is not discretionary: ORR’s agreement with 3 sponsors requires “best efforts” to establish such guardianships, and sponsors in many states 4 would be unable to access medical and educational records and make important decisions for the 5 children in their care without such court-ordered guardianships. See Sponsor Care Agreement 6 available at
7 https://www.acf.hhs.gov/sites/default/files/orr/frp_4_sponsor_care_agreement_05_14_18.pdf,
8 and attached hereto as Ex. 89.

10 228. Children who have been separated from their parents will also access the State 11 courts to obtain orders necessary for their immigration proceedings. For example, some such 12 children are eligible for Special Immigrant Juvenile Status (SIJS), pursuant to federal law. See
13 Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) §203(b)(4); INA §101(a)(27)(j); Trafficking Victims
14 Protection Reauthorization Act of 2008 (TVPRA), P.L. 110-457 §235. In these proceedings, the 15 federal immigration system relies on the expertise of state courts in making determinations 16 regarding a child’s welfare, requiring SIJS-eligible children to seek SIJS predicate findings from 17 a state’s juvenile court.
18

19 229. Education. Public elementary and secondary schools have a constitutional 20 obligation to educate students irrespective of immigration status. See Plyler v. Doe, 457 U.S.
21 202 (1982), and various statutory obligations to provide particularized services to high needs
22 students, such as through the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). Children 23 separated from their parents and placed with sponsors will attend the States’ public schools and 24 receive a variety of educational services, including special education, ESL programs, mental

1 health services, and other programs delivered within the school district. Such programs are
 2 funded in large part through local levy funds and state dollars. Indeed, state funding for general
 3 education delivered in public schools is calculated in part on a per-student basis.

4 230. The trauma of forcible separation from a parent renders public schooling more
 5 difficult and expensive for the States to provide. Research shows that the experience of trauma
 6 may severely undercut a child's ability to learn and function in the classroom. See Helping
 8 content/uploads/2013/06/Helping-Traumatized-Children-Learn.pdf, attached hereto as Ex. 90.
 9 Children may require additional mental health services through school guidance counselors and 10 social workers; they may have behavioral problems and trauma-related learning disabilities that 11 would need to be addressed; and they lack the critically important educational advocacy and 12 partnership that parents can provide. Students without parents to care for them are also more 13 likely to arrive at school with housing and food insecurity and require additional attention and 14 resources to address hunger, exhaustion, and increased levels of stress and anxiety.

15 231. Healthcare. Such children are also often eligible for State-funded healthcare
 16 programs, including mental health care treatment. Health care costs will be exacerbated for the 17 states because of the Policy, as children who suffer prolonged and unexpected separation from 18 their parents experience particular health effects, including higher levels of anxiety, more 19 susceptibility to physical and emotional illness, and decreased capacity to manage their 20 emotions. These health effects may result in higher levels of care and increase costs to the state.

232. Other programs. Many States also have programs that provide services specifically directed at helping immigrants and refugees, as well as programs designed to address the consequences of trauma. Some have limited available group care facilities that they stand to lose to ORR placements because of the increase in separated families.

233. The plaintiff States are already experiencing some of these proprietary harms.

234. Washington. For example, ORR places hundreds of unaccompanied minors with sponsors in the state of Washington every year. For FY 2017, the last year for which complete data are available, ORR placed almost 500 children with Washington resident sponsors. As of April 30, 2018, ORR's available data show that Washington has already received 278 unaccompanied children during this fiscal year. See <https://www.acf.hhs.gov/orr/resource/unaccompanied-alien-children-released-to-sponsors-by-state>. See Ex. 88.

235. Washington has almost 300 public school districts and serves well over a million children. Per pupil expenditures for 2016-17, for example, were more than $11,800 per child. Of this total, slightly more than 90% of school funding came from state and local resources. See Statewide Average Financial Tables and Charts available at <http://k12.wa.us/safs/PUB/FIN/1617/1617Section1Full.pdf>, attached hereto as Ex. 92. For the 2017-19 biennium, state spending for basic education will total over $22 billion, with over $16 billion allocated to basic general education services.

1 236. Washington State children residing in households with an income less than 312
2 percent of the federal poverty level are eligible for the Apple Health program, regardless of 3 citizenship and/or documented status. Qualifying children receive access to the full scope of 4 health care coverage including medical, dental, behavioral health, vision, hearing and 5 pharmaceutical benefits. Of the $7.3 billion that Washington state spent in state fiscal year 2017
6 to support the entire Apple Health program, the cost to cover minor children was $1.6 billion. In 7 state fiscal year 2017, the cost to cover undocumented immigrant children was $31 million. The 8 average cost per undocumented child in state fiscal year 2017 was $1,552 per year.

10 237. Washington's Office of Refugee and Immigrant Assistance (ORIA) is part of the 11 State of Washington, Department of Social and Health Services (DSHS). ORIA coordinates and 12 facilitates the provision of services for people who are refugees and immigrants to enable them to 13 achieve economic stability and integrate into Washington communities. To do this, ORIA braids 14 federal funding from the ORR with other federal and state dollars, for a total annual budget of 15 $27,925,874. This funding provides services to more than 10,000 refugees and immigrants each 16 year through contracts with more than 60 different organizations across the state to offer 11 distinct 17 programs and services. National immigration policies affect the state's access to federal funding.
18 For example, around August of 2014, the nation experienced an influx of unaccompanied
19 immigrant children being apprehended by immigration officials, and ORR reduced 20 Washington's federal funding to provide refugee social services to cover an increase in costs at 21 the national level.

23
24 238. Massachusetts. Since 2014, ORR has placed 3,803 unaccompanied children
25 with sponsors in Massachusetts. See Ex. 88. These numbers are particularly high in part because 26

1 of Massachusetts' large population of residents from which UACs most often come (Honduras,
 2 Guatemala, and El Salvador, in particular). See Office of Refugee Resettlement Facts & Data,
 3 available at <https://www.acf.hhs.gov/orr/about/ucs/facts-and-data>, attached hereto as Ex. 93. For 4 example, Massachusetts has the eighth largest Salvadoran population in the country. See Profiles
 5 of Boston's Latinos available at http://www.bostonplans.org/getattachment/e0019487-138b-

 7 general population to become sponsors of UACs because sponsors are often family members.

9 239. A non-profit foster care agency in Massachusetts, which is licensed by the 10 Massachusetts Department of Early Education and Care, also provides long term foster care
 11 services to UACs in Massachusetts foster homes. See Office of Refugee Resettlement Division

17 240. In Massachusetts, all children regardless of immigration status are entitled to a 18 free public education. On average, per pupil expenditures amount to more than $16,000. See
 19 Massachusetts Department of Elementary and Secondary Education School Finance Statistical 20 Comparisons FY13-FY17 Per Pupil Expenditures All Funds, available at 21 <http://www.doe.mass.edu/finance/statistics/ppx13-17.html>, attached hereto as Ex. 96. Of this 22 total, over 95 percent comes from state and local funding resources, with 39 percent from the 23 state alone. See https://www.census.gov/data/tables/2016/econ/school-finances/secondary-
 24 education-finance.html. In Massachusetts' Gateway Cities, where a higher population of

1 immigrants live, state funding amounts to an even higher percent of total per pupil spending.
 2 See <http://www.doe.mass.edu/finance/chapter70/chapter-17.html>. For Fiscal Year 2017, state
 3 spending on education programs totaled more than $7 billion. See 4 <http://massbudget.org/browser/index.php>.

 6 241. All undocumented children in Massachusetts are eligible for state-funded health
 7 insurance through the Children’s Medical Security Plan, MassHealth Limited, or the Health
 8 Safety Net. Immigrant children with SIJS and other statuses may be eligible for more robust 9 state-funded health insurance. See Understanding the Affordable Care Act: Non-Citizens’
 10 Eligibility for Mass Health & Other Subsidized Health Benefits (March 2018) available at 11 https://www.masslegalservices.org/system/files/library/Understanding%20eligibility%20of%20

 14 242. Children separated from their parents pursuant to the Policy will require
 15 determinations from the Massachusetts Probate and Family Court or Juvenile Court for purposes
 16 of SIJS, see Recinos v. Escobar, 473 Mass. 734 (2016), and determinations about guardianship 17 in the best interests of children. Mass. Gen. Laws c. 190B, § 5-206.

 19 243. Undocumented children and other immigrant children who are not eligible for 20 mental health services through state-funded health insurance programs may qualify for mental 21 health services through the state’s Department of Mental Health (“DMH”). Under its statutory 22 mandate, DMH provides or arranges for the provision of services to residents who meet certain 23 clinical criteria. Mass. Gen. Laws c. 19 § 1. For Massachusetts youth to meet DMH’s clinical 24 criteria, they must have a “serious emotional disturbance...that has lasted or is expected to last 25 at least one year [and] has resulted in functional impairment that substantially interferes with or 26

1 limits the child's [or] adolescent's role or functioning in family, school or community
 2 activities....". 104 CMR 20.04(2)(b). Many if not all children separated from their parents under 3 the Policy may suffer from such disturbances.

4 244. Oregon. Defendants' Policy also harms Oregon's proprietary interests, because 5 it forces Oregon to expend resources and incur costs that would otherwise not be required. For 6 example, unaccompanied minors detained in Oregon have often suffered severe trauma in their 7 home countries. Children separated from their parents under this Policy have suffered additional 8 trauma from Defendants' actions. Counsel for these minors can and do file petitions with the 9 juvenile court departments of the Oregon Circuit Courts on their behalf to obtain Special
 10 Immigrant Juvenile status. This allows the court to transfer custody to the Oregon Department
 11 of Human Services, where they can be placed in foster care and receive other necessary services, 12 such as healthcare, education, and other support. This process employs the financial and other 13 resources of the state of Oregon.

14 245. Children in Oregon, including those separated from parents, are entitled to a 15 public education. The cost of that education as of 2016-17 was $11,715 per student, with 92% 16 from state and local resources.

17 246. Children in Oregon, including those separated from parents, may be eligible for 18 health care funded in part by the state of Oregon. Children separated from parents who may 19 become wards of the state due to forced separation would become eligible for state-funded 20 healthcare at a cost of approximately $664 per-member per-month. Federal reimbursement is 21 not available for healthcare recipients in this population due to their immigration status. Some 22 children may not become wards of the state and would not have access to any state-funded
 23 healthcare at a cost of approximately $664 per-member per-month. Federal reimbursement is 24 not available for healthcare recipients in this population due to their immigration status. Some 25 children may not become wards of the state and would not have access to any state-funded 26 healthcare at a cost of approximately $664 per-member per-month.

1 healthcare. The average cost of hospitalization for a child in Oregon is $9,370. Oregon bears
2 the entire cost of providing healthcare and/or emergency-related care to children separated from 3 their families.

4 247. California. ORR places more unaccompanied minors with resident sponsors in 5 California than any other State in the country. For FY 2017, ORR placed 6,268 children with 6 California resident sponsors. As of April 30, 2018, California has already received 2,807
7 unaccompanied children during this fiscal year. See Ex. 88.

8 248. In California, any child, including children who have been separated from their 9 parents, is entitled to a free public education. Per pupil expenditures in 2017-18 exceeded
10 $14,000 per child from all fund sources. Of this total, over 91% came from state and local 11 resources. California has also dedicated educational funds to meeting the needs of 12 unaccompanied immigrant children.

13 249. In California, undocumented children receive healthcare coverage paid for 14 entirely by the State. See Cal. Welf. & Inst. Code § 14007.8. These children are also eligible 15 for and benefit from other state funded public health programs.

16 250. Children separated from their parents because of the Policy may require
17 determinations by California courts in order to obtain a guardianship or a predicate order
18 enabling the child to apply for Special Immigrant Juvenile Status. See Cal. Prob. Code § 1514;
19 Cal. Civ. Proc. Code § 155.

20 251. The federal government has already placed a number of children separated from 21 their parents pursuant to the Policy at nonprofit facilities in California, including facilities that 22 also serve children in the State child welfare system. In California, both state and county
25
26

1 personnel license and approve homes and facilities for the placement of vulnerable children.
2 Community Care Licensing (CCL) is the division within the California Department of Social 3 Services that has regulatory oversight of the residential facilities for children in California, and 4 is responsible for the health, safety, and welfare of children in out-of-home care facilities,
5 including those facilities who have contacts with ORR to house unaccompanied immigrant 6 children in California. In its role, CCL has three main functions: prevention, compliance, and 7 enforcement.

9 252. California's Refugee Programs Bureau is part of the Immigration and Refugee
10 Programs Branch of the California Department of Social Services (CDSS). This Bureau 11 provides assistance to newly arrived refugees to support long term social and economic 12 integration. In FY 2017, at least 12,058 refugees arrived in the state of California, and received 13 assistance from the State in the form of nutrition aid, cash assistance, employment services,
14 immigration legal services, medical services, and educational support. The Bureau administers
15 the Unaccompanied Refugee Minors (URM) Program, the Refugee School Impact Grant (RSIG), 16 and the California Newcomer Education and Well-Being (CalNEW), three programs exclusively 17 for minors. The URM provides foster care, case management, mental health, and medical 18 services to certain unaccompanied minors. Through RSIG and CalNEW, the RPB funds 19 programs in schools to provide supplementary educational and social adjustment support
20 services including academic, English-language acquisition, and mental and well-being supports.
21 The CalNEW is funded exclusively by the State. Combined, these programs help ensure that 22 immigrants coming to California are prepared to be full participants in California society and 23 culture, and that they are able to thrive in their new surroundings.
26

1 253. California's Immigration Services Unit is also a part of the Immigration and 2 Refugee Programs Branch of the CDSS. The California Legislature has authorized this program
 3 to provide assistance to "persons residing in, or formerly residing in, California," including 4 "[s]ervices to obtain . . . immigration remedies." Cal. Welf. & Inst. Code § 13303(b)(1)(B). The 5 program awards funding to California-based legal services organizations to assist in the 6 representation of undocumented immigrants in their immigration proceedings, including 7 targeted funding for unaccompanied undocumented minors present in California after release
 8 from the care and custody of ORR pursuant to Cal. Welf. & Inst. Code § 13300. The State has 9 invested $12,000,000 in services for unaccompanied minors since State FY 2014-2015. Legal 10 services providers have provided representation to 2,147 minors.

 12 254. New Jersey. ORR released a total of 2,268 Unaccompanied Children (UAC) to 13 sponsors in New Jersey in FY 2017 (October 2016 – September 2017), and an additional 1,053
 14 between October 2017 and April 2018. See
 15 https://www.acf.hhs.gov/orr/resource/unaccompanied-alien-children-released-to-sponsors-by-
 16 state. This is more than any other state except Virginia, Texas, New York, Maryland, Florida
 17 and California.

 19 255. Rhode Island. In Rhode Island, all children regardless of immigration status are 20 entitled to free public education. Rhode Island has over 300 public schools that serve over 21 142,000 children. Per-pupil expenditures for 2013-14 were more than $15,000 per child. The 22 majority of these funds come from state and local funding resources. As forcible separation from 23 a parent renders public schooling more difficult and expensive for Rhode Island, Rhode Island
 25
 26

1 will experience harm. See InfoWorks! Rhode Island Education Data Reporting, Rhode Island
 2 Public Schools, available at <http://infoworks.ride.ri.gov/state/ri>.

3 256. Vermont. In Vermont, all children, regardless of immigration status, are entitled
 4 to a free public education. On average, Vermont spends over $18,000 per pupil each year. See 5 Vermont Agency of Education, Per Pupil Spending: FY 2017 Report (2018), available at 6 <http://education.vermont.gov/documents/data-per-pupil-spending-fy2017>, attached hereto as 7 Ex. 98.

9 257. Many immigrant children are also eligible to receive free or low-cost health care
 10 through Vermont's children's health insurance program, known as Dr. Dynasaur. See generally 11 Vt. Health Benefits Eligibility and Enrollment Rules §§ 2.03(b), 7.02(b), 7.03(a)(3), 17.02,
 12 17.03, available at http://humanservices.vermont.gov/on-line-rules/hbee/hbee-all-parts-1-8-
 13 adopted-with-toc.pdf. The program includes mental health services, which may face increased 14 demand in cases of family separation.
 15

16 258. Since 2014, ORR has placed four unaccompanied minors in Vermont. See Ex.
 17 88. However, the Policy has seen increasingly large numbers of children scattered across the 18 nation, often in conditions of secrecy. See Exs. 23 & 25.

19 259. Vermont's responsibility to protect the welfare of all children living in the State 20 includes those children who are separated from their parents and moved to Vermont pursuant to 21 the Policy. That responsibility includes, when appropriate, commencing juvenile judicial 22 proceedings and incurring significant costs to ensure that children are receiving safe and 23 adequate care. See generally 33 V.S.A. §§ 5102, 5103, and 5116.
 26

1 260. The Policy's negative impact upon immigrants also threatens Vermont's
 2 economic interests. For example, in 2014, immigrant households paid $57.9 million in state and 3 local taxes. Of that amount, undocumented immigrants paid an estimated $2.9 million in state
 4 and local taxes that year. Immigrants also greatly contributed to the economy with over $462.5
 5 million in spending power. See The Contributions of New Americans in Vermont, New 6 American Economy (2016), available at https://research.newamericaneconomy.org/report/the-

11
 12 261. Minnesota. For FY 2017, the last year for which complete data are available,
 13 ORR placed over 300 children with Minnesota resident sponsors. As of April 30, 2018, ORR's 14 available data show that Minnesota has already received 164 unaccompanied children during 15 this fiscal year. See Ex. 88.

 17 262. In Minnesota, any child, including children who have been separated from their 18 parents, is eligible to a free public education. On average, per pupil expenditures for the current 19 fiscal year is $12,251 per child. Of this total, approximately 96% comes from state and local 20 resources. If, as may be expected, an immigrant child requires services through the English
 21 Learners program, the state funds an additional $700 or $950 per child. Children in Minnesota 22 may also require special education, mental health services, and other programs delivered within 23 the school district. Unaccompanied children, including those who are separated from their 24 parents, may also receive child care assistance in certain settings.

1 263. In addition, unaccompanied children residing in Minnesota, including those who
2 are separated from their parents, are also eligible to receive health care through Minnesota's
3 Emergency Medical Assistance program and support through the Women, Infants, and Children
4 program. They may also receive services through the state's child protection system.

6 264. Unaccompanied children in Minnesota, including those who are separated from 7 their parents, may also be involved in state court proceedings related to the unaccompanied 8 child's immigration status or the child's sponsor's legal authority.

9 265. Iowa. Likewise, since 2014, ORR has placed 980 unaccompanied children with 10 sponsors in Iowa. See Ex. 93.

11 266. In Iowa, all children regardless of immigration status are entitled to a free public 12 education. On average, per pupil expenditures amounted to nearly $13,000 in federal FY2015.
13 See Revenues and Expenditures for Public Elementary and Secondary Education: School Year
14 2014-15 (Fiscal Year 2015) available at <https://nces.ed.gov/pubs2018/2018301.pdf>, attached
15 hereto as Ex. 101. Of this total, 93% came from state and local funding sources, with 53%
16 coming from the state alone. Id.

18 267. Illinois. Illinois's commitment to supporting its immigrant communities is also 19 evidenced by certain state expenditures.

21 268. In FY 2018, for example, the Illinois Department of Human Services (DHS) was 22 appropriated approximately $13,779,400 for various refugee and immigration services. These 23 funds came from General Revenue Funds and other state funds. See Pub. Act 100-21, at 15, 450
24 (2017), available at <http://ilga.gov/legislation/publicacts/100/PDF/100-0021.pdf>, attached
25 hereto as Ex. 102. In FY 2019, DHS, the Illinois Office of the Secretary of State, and the Illinois
26

1 Department of Public Health were appropriated approximately $37,477,900 for various refugee
 2 and immigration services. See Pub. Act 100-586, at 335, 343–44, 402–03, 433 (2018), available
 3 at <http://ilga.gov/legislation/publicacts/100/PDF/100-0586.pdf>, attached hereto as Ex. 103.

 5 269. Services provided by DHS through the Bureau of Refugee and Immigrant
 6 Services include helping newly arrived refugees achieve self-sufficiency in the United States
 7 and providing outreach and interpretation services to low-income and limited English-proficient
 8 individuals requiring supportive services.” See Refugee & Immigrant Services, ILL. DEP’T OF 9 HUMAN SERVS., available at <http://www.dhs.state.il.us/page.aspx?item=30363> (last visited June 10 22, 2018), and attached hereto as Ex. 104.

 12 270. Similarly, within the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services 13 (DCFS) exists the Office of the DCFS Guardian. This Guardian serves as the legal parent of 14 every child in the custody of DCFS, “monitor[ing] and mak[ing] critical decisions based on the 15 child’s best interests regarding major medical treatment, ... and all other decisions requiring 16 parental consent.” See ILL. DEP’T OF CHILDREN & FAMILY SERVS., BUDGET BRIEFING FY 2019,
 17 at 34 (2018), https://www2.illinois.gov/dcfs/aboutus/newsandreports/Documents/FY19_Budget
 18 Briefing.pdf, attached hereto as Ex. 105. To that end, the DCFS Guardian, with assistance from 19 the DCFS Special Counsel and the Immigration Services Unit, acquires adjustment of legal 20 status for foreign-born youth who are under its guardianship. Id.

 22 271. Children reunited with a family member residing in Illinois will likely be entitled
 23 to access certain state-funded programs. This is also true for children currently sheltered outside 24 of Illinois who are later reunited with a family member residing in Illinois.

1 272. For example, every child residing in Illinois, including children who have been
 2 separated from their parents, is entitled to a free public education. In school year 2015–16, 3 Illinois per-pupil expenditures exceed $12,900 per child. Of this total, over 92% comes from 4 state and local resources. See ILL. STATE BD. OF EDUC., ILLINOIS STATE REPORT CARD 3 (2017),
 5 [http://webprod.isbe.net/ereportcard/publicsite/getReport.aspx?year=2017&code=2017StateRep](http://webprod.isbe.net/ereportcard/publicsite/getReport.aspx?year=2017&code=2017StateReport E.pdf)
 6 [ort E.pdf](http://webprod.isbe.net/ereportcard/publicsite/getReport.aspx?year=2017&code=2017StateReport E.pdf), attached hereto as Ex. 106.

8 273. Moreover, separated children enrolled in Illinois schools may receive bilingual
 9 support services through Transitional Bilingual Education (TBE) Programs and/or Transitional
 10 Programs of Instruction (TPI). These programs help English Learners achieve academically, 11 and provide classroom and other forms of support. In FY 2018 and FY 2019, Illinois
 12 appropriated approximately $65,540,700 and $48,600,000, respectively to support bilingual
 13 education programs in Illinois school districts. See Pub. Act 100-21, at 636–37 (Ex. 102); Pub.
 14 Act 100-586, at 491 (Ex. 104). Currently, Illinois school districts receive funding on a per-pupil
 15 allocation by level of service ranging from $304–758 per pupil. See ILL. STATE BD. OF EDUC., 16 FISCAL YEAR 2018 PROPOSED BUDGET 14, 58 (2017), available at 17 <https://www.isbe.net/Documents/fy2018-budget-book.pdf>, attached hereto as Ex. 107. Children
 18 who are reunited with family members located in Illinois who attend Illinois schools are likely 19 to receive such services as English Learners.

22 274. As well, each child who qualifies is entitled to receive free breakfast and lunch
 23 pursuant to the Illinois Free Lunch and Breakfast Program, 105 ILCS 125/1. Through this 24 program, the Illinois State Board of Education reimburses all public schools, nonprofit private 25 schools, and residential child care institutions that provided breakfast and lunch to children who 26

1 meet the income-level guidelines. In FY 2018 and FY 2019, the Board of Education received
 2 $9,000,000 in state funding to provide reimbursements. See Pub. Act 100-21, at 435, 634–35
 3 (Ex. 102); See Pub. Act. 100-587, at 39, 450 (2018), available at 4 <http://ilga.gov/legislation/publicacts/100/PDF/100-0587.pdf>, attached hereto as Ex. 108.
 6 Heartland Alliance is a participant in the Free Lunch and Breakfast Program and receives
 7 reimbursement from the State of Illinois for breakfasts and lunches provided to unaccompanied
 8 children in Illinois.

9 275. Separated children may also be eligible for healthcare programs that are partially 10 or fully funded by the State of Illinois, including Medicaid. In FY 2014, for example, Illinois
 11 spent an average of approximately $2,108 per Medicaid-eligible child. See Medicaid Spending

 15

16 276. In addition, children who have been separated from their parents may access state
 17 courts in Illinois in order to obtain Special Immigrant Juvenile Status (SIJS). In order to petition
 18 the U.S. Customs and Immigration Services for a SIJS, a child must first obtain an order from a 19 state court finding that it is not in the child’s best interests to return to her home country or to 20 the country she last lived in, and that the child cannot be reunited with a parent because of abuse,
 21 abandonment, or neglect. As additional children are brought to Illinois as a result of Defendants’
 22 child separation policy, Illinois courts will see an increase in the number of orders being sought.
 23

24 277. New York. In FY 2017, ORR placed 3,938 children with New York resident
 25 sponsors. ORR placed another 1,577 UACs with New York resident sponsors from October 2017
 26

1 through April 30, 2018. See Unaccompanied Alien Children Released to Sponsors by State,
 2 available at Ex. 88.

3 278. Once a UAC is placed with a sponsor who resides in New York State, the child
 4 is entitled to a variety of services funded by the state, including educational services, early 5 intervention services, and access to healthcare, among others. New York State makes these 6 services available to such children in support of the State's interest in ensuring the health, safety, 7 and well-being of all residents.

8 279. New York State will incur expenses to educate UACs placed within the state
 9 because under state law, children ages six through sixteen who reside in New York must attend
 10 school and are entitled to attend school up until age twenty-one. Moreover, the IDEA requires 11 the state to provide special education services to students with learning or emotional disabilities.
 12 Under this federal law, children aged three to twenty-one are entitled to special education
 13 services when clinically warranted. 20 U.S.C. § 1411. New York State law also entitles 14 qualified students to English Language Learner (ELL) services. N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs.
 15 Tit. 8, § 154. There are 692 public school districts in New York that serve approximately 2.6
 16 million students. While costs will vary depending on the school district's location and the child's 17 needs, the statewide average to educate a student in New York is approximately $22,000 per 18 year.
 19

20 280. New York State also provides a robust early intervention program which UACs
 21 utilize when placed in New York State communities. The Part C Early Intervention Program
 22 (EIP) was created by Congress in 1986 as part of the IDEA. The IDEA authorizes the 23 discretionary EIP for infants and toddlers with disabilities and requires states to provide a free
 26

1 appropriate education for all students with disabilities, ages three to twenty-one. 20 U.S.C. §§
2 1411, 1419. Each year, New York's EIP serves over 60,000 children ages zero to three who have 3 moderate to severe developmental delays. The EIP includes 1,279 providers that contract with 4 New York State to bill for EI services. Total annual expenditures for New York's EIP total more
5 than $644 million across all payers—45% is covered by Medicaid, 2% by commercial insurance, 6 26% by state funds, and 27% by county funds. While EIP costs and services vary based on the 7 child's needs and the intensity of services offered, for the 2017 program year the average cost of 8 services delivered ranged from $5,820 to $22,000 per child.

10 281. New York State also incurs significant medical expenses for each UAC placed in 11 state. UACs who are placed with sponsors in the community are eligible to enroll in the 12 Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) operated by New York's Office of Health
13 Insurance Programs. The yearly cost of CHIP per child is $2,607.36 and is financed exclusively 14 by New York State.
15

16 282. An influx of UACs also carries with it increased costs for the New York State
17 child welfare system. After a UAC is placed with a sponsor in the community, that placement
18 may be disrupted for a number of reasons. If the child becomes at risk of entering foster care—19 for example, because of allegations of abuse or neglect by the person now legally responsible 20 for the child—the child welfare system will provide preventive services to attempt to keep the 21 child safely in the new home; such services are funded, in part, by New York State. If those 22 services are unsuccessful and the child must be removed from the new home, New York State 23 will also partly fund the child's placement and needed services while in the foster system.

283. Maryland. For FY 2017, the last year for which complete data are available, ORR placed almost 3,000 children with Maryland resident sponsors—the fifth most of any state. As of April 30, 2018, ORR’s available data show that Maryland has already received 901 unaccompanied children during this fiscal year. See Ex. 88. Maryland is one of the states that is receiving children separated from their parents under the Trump Administration’s “zero tolerance” policy. See Theresa Vargas, “I will kiss their boo-boos” Foster Families provide small comforts (June 22, 2018), attached hereto as Ex. 109; I really miss my mom: What becomes of a 5-year-old in Maryland and the other separated children now?, The Washington Post (June 21, 2018) available at https://www.washingtonpost.com/local/i-really-miss-my-mom-what-becomes-of-a-5-year-old-in-maryland-and-other-the-separated-children-now/2018/06/21/28afbd54-759d-11e8-9780-b1dd6a09b549_story.html?utm_term=.383bb9cc8a01, attached hereto as Ex. 110; “Bethany Continues to Work to Reunify Families Separated at the Border,” available at <https://www.bethany.org/campaigns/refugee>, attached hereto as Ex. 111.

284. The Office of Licensing and Monitoring within Maryland’s Department of Human Services licenses several organizations that operate shelters at which unaccompanied children—including children separated from their parents under the federal government’s policy—are being placed. At least one such organization receiving children in Maryland is under contract with ORR to provide services for unaccompanied immigrant minors, including children separated from their parents under the policy.

285. As the separated children are placed in foster homes, many will enter the Maryland’s public school system. Maryland’s 24 public school districts served nearly 900,000

1 students during the 2016-17 school year. Per pupil expenditures for 2016-17 were over $13,000
 2 per child. Of this total, approximately 95% of school funding came from state and local 3 resources. For the 2016-17 school year, state and local spending for basic education totaled over
 4 $12 billion, with nearly $5 billion allocated to general instructional expenditures. See Selected

9 286. Virginia. More than one hundred traumatized, unaccompanied alien children
 10 have been transported and are being housed at federal detention centers in Virginia. More than 11 a dozen of those children were separated from their parents at the southern border. See Nick 12 Anderson and Marissa J. Lang, Sen. Tim Kaine tours Virginia shelter housing about 15 separated

18 287. ORR reports that they have placed hundreds of unaccompanied alien children 19 with sponsors in the Commonwealth of Virginia every year. For FY 2017, the last year for which 20 complete data are available, ORR placed 2,888 children with Virginia resident sponsors. As of 21 April 30, 2018, ORR's available data show that Virginia has already received 931
 22 unaccompanied alien children during this fiscal year. See Ex. 88.

24 288. Under federal law, states and local educational agencies are obligated to provide 25 all children – regardless of immigration status – with equal access to public education at the 26

1 elementary and secondary level. This includes unaccompanied alien children who may be 2 involved in immigration proceedings. Once these children are released to a sponsor, they have 3 a right to enroll in Virginia schools regardless of their immigration status. In Virginia, some of 4 these unaccompanied alien children under 18 will be classified as homeless under applicable
 5 state and federal law. See Va. Code Ann. § 22.1-3. Virginia school divisions are required to 6 immediately enroll homeless students. The Virginia Department of Education provides the state
 7 share, and the enrolling local school division is responsible for paying the local share of the cost
 8 for educating students enrolled in public schools at a total per pupil statewide average 9 expenditure in excess of $10,000.
 10

11 289. Unaccompanied alien children may seek a variety of health services in Virginia.
 12 For example, they need childhood immunizations and may seek testing and treatment when they 13 present with symptoms of a communicable disease. In Virginia, school divisions are required to 14 help any child classified as homeless obtain necessary physical examinations and 15 immunizations. Va. Code § 22.1-271.2. Moreover, if an unaccompanied alien child needed to be 16 hospitalized for emergency care, including psychiatric care, then Virginia would provide and 17 bear the cost of that care in part by absorption of costs by state-owned hospitals.
 18

19 290. ORR places hundreds of unaccompanied minors with sponsors in the State of 20 North Carolina every year. For FY 2017, ORR placed approximately 1,290 children with North
 21 Carolina-resident sponsors. As of April 30, 2018, ORR's available data show that North 22 Carolina has already received 565 unaccompanied children during this fiscal year. See Ex. 88.

24 291. North Carolina. The State of North Carolina has 11 State Refugee and Health
 25 Coordinators that are coordinated and organized through the State's Department of Health and 26

1 Human Services Refugee Services program. North Carolina's Refugee Services program
 2 integrates federal funding from ORR with other federal and state funding. The program services
 3 thousands of refugees across the State of North Carolina.

4 292. District of Columbia. ORR places hundreds of unaccompanied minors with 5 sponsors in the District of Columbia every year. For FY 2017, the last year for which complete
 6 data are available, ORR placed almost 300 children with District of Columbia resident sponsors.
 7 As of April 30, 2018, ORR's available data show that the District of Columbia has already 8 received more than 80 unaccompanied children during this fiscal year. See Ex. 88.

10 293. In the District of Columbia, any child, including children who have been 11 separated from their parents, is entitled to a free public education. The District spends almost 12 $10,000 per child in D.C Public Schools. The overwhelming share of the money spent on public 13 education in the District comes from local taxes, fees, and resources. See, e.g.,
 14 https://cfo.dc.gov/sites/default/files/dc/sites/ocfo/publication/attachments/DCOCFO_FY17_Bu
 15 dget vol 3.pdf.

17 294. The District of Columbia offers comprehensive health insurance coverage to 18 eligible children who have been separated from their parents through the Immigrant Children's 19 Program, which provides coverage equal to that offered by Medicaid, including: doctor visits, 20 immunizations, mental health services, dental, vision, and prescription drugs. See Department of

L. Defendants' Policy Harms the States' Quasi-Sovereign Interests

295. States have a quasi-sovereign interest in protecting the health, safety, and well-being of their residents, including protecting their residents from harms to their physical, psychological, emotional, or economic health. The States' interests in preventing and remedying injuries to the public's health, safety, and well-being extends to all of their residents who will be harmed by the Policy. The Policy has caused and will continue to cause severe and immediate harm to the States' residents, including parents who are detained, released, or otherwise reside in the States after being forcibly separated from their children; children who are placed in facilities, shelters, homes or otherwise reside in the States after being separated from their parents; extended families and sponsors in the States; and the States' immigrant communities.

296. The States also have an interest in ensuring that their residents are not excluded from the rights and privileges provided by the U.S. Constitution, international laws, federal laws, and state laws. These rights include due process and equal protection rights afforded to alien parents and their minor children, and rights and protections under federal asylum and refugee laws, international human rights laws, and state laws.

297. The Policy causes measurable harm to existing immigrant communities in the States. A 2018 study published in the Journal of Adolescent Health finds that recent changes in U.S. immigration policy that appear to target Latino immigrants have triggered serious psychological distress for many resident Latino parents, including those living in the United States legally. A substantial proportion of U.S. Latino parents reported adverse emotional and behavioral consequences from recent immigration actions and news. For example, 66% said that they very often or always worry about family members getting separated. Nearly 40% of parents

1 said they frequently avoided getting medical care, help from police, or support from social
2 service agencies because of reports about immigration actions. Parents who frequently
3 experienced worries or changes in behavior due to immigration news and policies had at least a 4 250% increase in the odds of experiencing high psychological distress, including clinical anxiety
5 and depression. The association between U.S. immigration actions and psychological distress in 6 this study held true after controlling for education, residency status, gender and other factors.

8 298. Many of the States have resident Latino and Hispanic populations that are 9 affected by the Policy and attendant distress. For example, as of 2010, 10.2 percent of the total
10 population of Washington State was of Hispanic origin, with some counties over 45%. Indeed, 11 roughly one in seven Washington residents is an immigrant, while one in eight residents is a 12 native-born U.S. citizen with at least one immigrant parent. The other States also have resident 13 Latino and Hispanic communities who are impacted by the Policy, as well.
14

15 299. Indeed, the States are already acting to try to protect the health, safety, and well-16 being of persons separated and harmed by the Policy. As a result of the Policy, thousands of 17 immigrant parents and children are being separated and moved to a range of facilities or homes
18 in the States or being released to live in the States. Transfer of these separated immigrant parents
19 and children into the States will continue into the future as long as Defendants' Policy remains 20 in place. See Exs. 55, 8, 21. In May 2018 alone, DHS took nearly 51,912 immigrants into 21 custody, nearly three times the number detained in May 2017. Ex. 55. The number of families
22 apprehended at the Southwestern border increased by 435% in May 2018 in comparison to May 23 2017. Ex. 8. The States have an interest in protecting those immigrants who are resident, or will 24 soon settle, in their jurisdictions.

300. Traumatized immigrant parents and children are already present in the States’ shelters and in federal detention centers in the States. On June 7, 2018, ICE spokeswoman Danielle Bennett confirmed that because of “implementation of the U.S. Department of Justice’s zero-tolerance Policy . . . ICE has entered into inter-agency agreements with [the Bureau of Prisons (BOP)] to acquire access to more than 1,600 additional beds at [five] BOP facilities.” These include 220 beds at the Federal Detention Center SeaTac in Seattle, Washington; 130 beds in Sheridan, Oregon; and 1,000 beds at the Federal Correctional Institution Victorville Medium Security Prison in Victorville, California. See Robert Moore, Immigration Officials Taking Over 1,600 Beds in Federal Prison System, Texas Monthly (June 8, 2018) available at <https://www.texasmonthly.com/news/immigration-officials-taking-1600-beds-federal-prison-system/>, attached hereto as Ex. 115.

301. Defendants’ Policy causes severe and lasting psychological and emotional harm to immigrant parents in Washington who have been separated from their children. For example, of the approximately 200 immigrants detained in Seattle as of June 19, 2018, 174 were women, and dozens of those women were mothers who had been forcibly separated from their children, whose ages range from one-year-old to teenagers. See Jayapal Goes Inside Federal Detention Center to Meet with Asylum Seeking Women: “the mothers could not stop crying” (June 9, 2018), available at <https://jayapal.house.gov/media/press-releases/jayapal-goes-inside-federal-detention-center-meet-asylum-seeking-women-0>, attached hereto as Ex. 116. Many were asylum seekers from Latin American countries. Id. Most had been in detention for more than two weeks and many for over a month. Id. A majority of the mothers have not spoken with their

1 children in weeks, and Defendants had not provided the mothers with any information regarding 2 the whereabouts or well-being of their children. Id.

3 302. These women described the horrific and inhumane conditions at the Border Patrol
4 facilities where they were previously detained, including fenced cages; lack of blankets and mats
5 notwithstanding frigid temperatures; and lack of access to food and water. Id. Some suffered
6 verbal abuse from border agents who called them “filthy” and “stinky.” Id. And they endured
7 further intentionally inflicted trauma when agents told them their “families would not exist 8 anymore” and that they would “never see their children again.” Id.

10 303. The specific stories of two immigrant mothers who are being detained in Seattle
11 confirm this horrifying experience. These two mothers crossed the border in Texas, immediately
12 turned themselves in, and were taken to a holding facility. The mothers were each separated 13 from their daughters upon arrival and held in a facility they describe as similar to a dog kennel.
14 The following week, the mothers appeared in federal court, were charged with illegal entry, 15 found guilty, and served time in Texas. After approximately three weeks, the mothers were 16 flown to SeaTac, where they remain in prison without their daughters.

18 304. A growing number of children separated from their parents pursuant to 19 Defendants’ Policy have been placed in facilities in Washington. These children have suffered 20 severe psychological and emotional trauma.

22 305. Similarly, a Brazilian woman who recently arrived in Massachusetts presented
23 herself for asylum at the U.S.-Mexico border and was detained and then separated from her 8-24 year-old son. Immigration authorities determined that she has a credible fear of persecution if 25 she is returned to Brazil, so she has since been released pending adjudication of her asylum
26

1 claim. As of June 22, 2018, she had not, however, been reunited with her son, who remains in
 2 a facility in Chicago, where he hasn't been able to see his mother for almost a month. See Akilah

 7 as Ex. 117.

 10 a Massachusetts resident, after being separated from their mother, with whom they crossed the 11 border to seek asylum. She is still in detention in Texas. The children were held in facilities in 12 Texas and then Michigan for five weeks until they were released to their father. The young girl, 13 who is 9 years old, has been particularly affected by the experience and still cries for her mother.

 17 policy-firsthand, attached hereto as Ex. 118.

19 307. Defendants' abhorrent and indefensible family-separation Policy has already had 20 an impact on Oregon in a variety of ways, and will continue to do so. There are at least 123
 21 immigrant men detained at the federal prison in Sheridan, Oregon. At least six of these are 22 fathers, from Mexico, Guatemala and Honduras, who have been separated from their children
 23 pursuant to the Policy. Oregon's federal lawmakers have been able to visit these detainees, and 24 report that they have been denied access to lawyers and health care and are confined to cells for 25

1 up to 22 hours a day. Oregon immigration lawyers also report that they have been repeatedly
2 denied access to detainees. The Mexican Consulate reports that one of the detained men had his
3 newborn infant, only 15 days old, taken from him. Another detainee was separated from his 18-
4 month-old toddler. Another reports his wife is detained in San Antonio, Texas, and he does not 5 know the whereabouts of their 4-year-old child.

7 308. There are a number of children in Oregon who have been separated from their 8 parents by the defendants' implementation of its Policy, including two children who saw their 9 mother being taken away in chains. At least three others have been separated from their parents
10 at the border pursuant to the Policy.
11

12 309. Defendants' unlawful Policy also cruelly affects the wellbeing of Oregon
13 residents, including its immigrant and Hispanic and Latinx populations. For example, a 14 substantial number of Oregon residents are survivors of the Japanese-American internment 15 camps of World War II, or family members of such survivors. Many of those survivors and/or 16 family members have experienced significant emotional and psychological distress as a result of 17 the government's family-separation Policy.
18

19 310. Similarly, some Oregonians are survivors of Nazi concentration camps. Many of 20 those survivors are also experiencing profound psychological and emotional distress as a result 21 of the federal government's family-separation Policy. For all these Oregon survivors and their 22 families, the Policy echoes the ethnic-based targeting that they experienced in the twentieth 23 century, and causes them to relive the trauma of one of the darkest times in history. Many 24 survivors are also profoundly afraid for the safety of minority communities targeted by the 25 current Administration.
26

1 311. Defendants' Policy similarly harms immigrant parents and children in California
2 who have been separated by federal immigration officials. For example, at least 50-60 children 3 are being served in group homes and family homes approved by foster family agencies in 4 California as a result of Defendants' Policy.

6 312. Additionally, parents, including asylum-seekers, who have been separated from 7 their children are being housed at facilities throughout Southern California. There is a
8 particularly large number of immigration detainees being held at the Victorville facility, but 9 unlike the SeaTac facility, attorneys have been denied access to determine how many of those 10 individuals are parents.

11 313. Several asylum-seeker parents who arrived at a port of entry with a migrant 12 caravan in April 2018 were separated from their children. While their children have been placed 13 by ORR in facilities across the nation, the parents are being detained in other immigration 14 detention facilities in California. Parents are not provided with information about their 15 children's whereabouts or how to locate them. As a result, parents have been unable to locate 16 or communicate with their children, are not receiving regular in-person visitation or phone 17 contact with their children, and have not been told if or when their families will be reunified.

18
19 314. Likewise, New Mexico has a right to ensure that no one within its border is 20 excluded from the rights and privileges provided by the U.S. Constitution, international, federal 21 or state law. State resources are used without statutory authority if used in furtherance of 22 unconstitutional federal policies contravening the purposes of New Mexico's constitution and 23 laws. There is well documented evidence to suggest that these interests are currently being 24 infringed upon with the boundaries of the State of New Mexico.

1 315. The federal Office of Refugee Resettlement reported that 15 Unaccompanied
2 Children (UAC) taken into custody in New Mexico were released to U.S. sponsors between 3 October 2017 and April 2018, but those children were not released to caregivers licensed by the 4 State of New Mexico. One Brazilian grandmother held at the Santa Teresa border crossing in 5 New Mexico was separated from her 16-year-old ward almost a year ago. The child, who has 6 severe epilepsy, neurological problems and is autistic, was placed in Connecticut. See Angela
7 Kocherga, Zero-tolerance policy impacts New Mexico, Albuquerque Journal June 20, 2018, page
8 4 (citing Maria Vandelize de Pastos' attorney Eduardo Beckett), available at 9 <https://www.abqjournal.com/1186875/zerotolerance-policy-impacts-new-mexico.html>,
10 attached hereto as Ex. 119.

12 316. Approximately fifty mothers, some with valid claims for asylum have had their 13 children separated from them at border crossings and are being held in a private jail in Otero
14 County, New Mexico. One of the Mothers details health issues her child faces and that she is 15 completely unaware of where he is or whether his health needs are being addressed. See Jonathan

21 317. New Mexico also has an interest in ensuring that New Mexico citizens continue 22 to be afforded their rights to cross the U.S.-Mexico border unmolested. Because many New 23 Mexico families visit their relatives in Mexico and because these families traditionally visit with 24
26

1 their own children in tow, such New Mexico citizens face the potential of separation in 2 derogation of their rights to travel and to maintain their familial ties.

3 318. Because there is direct evidence of harm to these families, occurring within the 4 borders of New Mexico, the state has a distinct interest in ensuring that no violations of law
5 occur. This notion is grounded in general principles of federalism, and are distinctly the 6 obligations of the state in ensuring that its constitution and laws are upheld. This interstitial 7 framework is well grounded in law and is the underpinning of our system of government.

9 319. Fathers who were forcibly separated from their children at the border are 10 currently being detained at the Elizabeth Detention Center in Elizabeth, New Jersey. See Brenda

16 have been placed at the Center for Family Services in Camden, New Jersey, which contracts
17 with ORR to provide shelter to children who crossed the border. See Kelly Heyboer and Erin

23 321. Defendants' Policy causes severe and potentially permanent emotional and 24 psychological trauma to children in Rhode Island who have been separated from their parents 25 pursuant to Defendants' Policy. Unaccompanied Alien Children are released to sponsors in 26

1 Rhode Island by the Office of Refugee Resettlement of the United States Department of Health
 2 and Human Services each year. For example in FY 2017, 234 total Unaccompanied Minor Child
 3 were released in Rhode Island and thus far in FY 2018 that total already stands at 129. These 4 children have suffered severe psychological and emotional trauma. See. Unaccompanied Alien
 5 Children Released to Sponsors by State (June 30, 2017) Ex. 88.

7 322. In Vermont, reports are emerging that federal authorities' animus toward Latino
 8 migrants is taking a psychological and medical toll on migrant workers essential to Vermont's 9 dairy industry and economy. See J. Dillon, For Undocumented Workers On Vermont Farms,
 10 2017 Was A Year Filled With Anxiety, Vermont Public Radio (January 5, 2018), (public health 11 screening of migrant workers found 80% exhibiting elevated levels of stress), available at

 13 anxiety#stream/0, attached hereto as Ex. 122. The Policy will likely increase the strain on an 14 already vulnerable population.
 15

16 323. Children who have been forcibly separated from their parents at the border have 17 already arrived in Minnesota and other children who have been separated from their parents are 18 likely to come to Minnesota in the future.
 19

20 324. For example, an 8 year-old girl experienced the most "traumatic moment of her 21 life" when she was forcibly separated from her father at the U.S.-Mexico border. See Chris 22 Serres and Mary Lynn Smith, the Star Tribune (June 23, 2018) available at 23 http://www.startribune.com/migrant-children-separated-from-parents-start-to-arrive-in-
 24 minnesota/486365431/, attached hereto as Ex. 123. The father "begged the officer to be able to 25 stay with his child. He was crying. She was crying." Id. After they were separated, her father 26

1 was deported to Guatemala. The girl remains in Minnesota, but wants to be reunited with her 2 family.

3 325. As one lawyer who represents unaccompanied minors in Minnesota explained, 4 “[s]o many of these children, they just want their parents. They really, really, really want to be 5 reunited with their families.” Id.

6 326. Illinois has also received children affected by the Policy. As of June 22, 2018, 7 approximately 66 minor children, who have been separated from their parents or guardians and 8 are awaiting immigration proceedings, are currently under the care of Heartland Alliance.
9 Currently, Heartland is housing these separated children in the cities of Chicago and Des Plaines.

11 327. Heartland is endeavoring to reunite the 66 separated children with family 12 members in the United States. Certain of these children will likely remain in Illinois, given the 13 fact that 1,568 unaccompanied minors were released to sponsors located in Illinois between 14 October 2014 and April 2018. See Ex. 88.

16 328. New York State relies on the same agencies that the federal ORR relies on for 17 provision of foster care services. ORR currently contracts with eleven provider agencies in New 18 York State to care for UACs, including those children whom Defendants have separated from 19 their parents: Abbott House; Catholic Family Center; Catholic Guardian Services; Cayuga Home
20 for Children; Children’s Home of Kingston; Children’s Village; Jewish Child Care Association
21 of New York; Rising Ground (formerly Leake and Watts Services); Lincoln Hall; Lutheran
22 Social Services of New York; and MercyFirst. These agencies either run residential congregate 23 care programs that house the children or place the children with family or sponsors in the 24 community, or do both. These agencies also provide residential care and placement services for 25

1 children who enter New York's child welfare system because they are abandoned, abused,
2 neglected, delinquent or dependent children. OCFS has confirmed that at least 321 children who 3 have been separated from their parents at the Southwestern border are currently in the care of 4 one of these eleven agencies and thus residing in New York State. Since the State was unable to 5 obtain this information from HHS or ORR, OCFS undertook efforts to create a census of 6 separated children in New York State. Specifically, OCFS's Acting Commissioner issued a 7 directive to the agencies to confirm the total number of UACs in their care. Upon receipt of that 8 information, OCFS staff verbally verified with each voluntary agency how many of those 9 children were in fact separated from their families at the border. To accomplish this, OCFS staff
10 took a hiatus from their regular duties and, in a single day, physically went to each of the 11
11 agencies to review records and interview children in order to obtain a current head count. ORR 12 has still not confirmed this number or shared data regarding how many children have already 13 come through these voluntary agencies, or how many it plans to send to these voluntary agencies 14 in the future.

17 329. Staff at one voluntary agency have informed local government officials that the 18 ages of most children newly placed at their agency, many of whom were separated from family
19 at the border, are between four and twelve. The youngest child so far was a nine-month-old 20 baby, in addition to multiple not-yet-verbal toddlers.

22 330. The children whom Defendants have separated from their parents and sent to New 23 York are suffering extreme trauma. For example, a South American boy who was separated from 24 his father at the Mexican border was rushed to the hospital because he was about to jump out of 25 the second-story window of the group home where he was sent in early June after being forcibly
26

1 separated from his family. The distraught child verbalized that he wanted to jump because he
 2 missed his parents. Twelve other young immigrant children who were separated from their
 3 parents at the border have been treated for physical and mental illnesses at New York City
 4 hospitals. One child was suicidal and others were treated for depression and anxiety. See Jillian
 5 Jorgensen, City hospitals have treated 12 immigrant children who were taken from parents,
 6 including a suicidal child, N.Y. Daily News (June 21, 2018) available at 7 http://www.nydailynews.com/news/politics/ny-pol-immigrant-children-treated-20180621-
 8 story.html, attached hereto as Ex. 124.

10 331. New York State has a quasi-sovereign interest in the health, safety and well-being 11 of all children within its borders, and Defendant's separation policy directly undermines that 12 interest by causing severe trauma to these children. New York State goes to great lengths to 13 provide significant due process protections for both parents and children when families are 14 separated as a result of government action. When a child is placed in foster care in New York, 15 state statutes and regulations afford both the parent and the child a range of rights, including the 16 right of visitation. Indeed, the child's family service plan must include a plan for regular 17 visitation between the parents and child. N.Y. Soc. Serv. Law § 409-e; N.Y. Comp. Codes R. &
 18 Regs. Tit. 18 § 428.3. See also N.Y. Fam. Ct. Act § 1030(a) (providing that a parent has a right 19 of regular and reasonable visitation with a child in foster care unless otherwise prohibited by 20 court order). This right of regular visitation is afforded even when one or both parents is 21 incarcerated in a prison or jail. In that situation, the child welfare agency must make suitable 22 arrangements with the correctional facility for a parent to visit with the child, unless the visiting 23 would be harmful to the child. 11 OCFS ADM 07. Moreover, parents who are incarcerated are entitled to participate in the planning for their child in foster care by participating in family court proceedings and periodic family service plan reviews. See N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. Tit. 18 § 428.9. To protect these vital rights, state law provides that the parent of a child in foster care has a right to assigned counsel by the court where such parent is financially unable to obtain one. N.Y. Family Court Act § 26. Such rules are premised on the importance of the parent-child bond, and the parent's critical, indispensable role in assuring that the needs of his or her child are met. Here, by contrast, the parents and children whom Defendants have separated at the border are afforded no visitation procedure and have no process to recognize or protect their rights. Due to Defendant's illegal policy, the separated children who are currently residing in New York are being treated differently than other children in foster care in the State, to their great detriment and in direct contravention of the state's interest in ensuring the health, safety, and well-being of all its residents.

332. Upon information and belief, family members of separated children currently reside in New York State. An HHS spokesman stated that "[t]here's an effort to place [children who were separated at the border] as closely as possible to where they're going to be eventually reunified with a sponsor or a family member" and that if a child was placed in New York it usually means that there is a family member residing in the state who is a possible placement option for the child. See Tal Kopan, Why some children have been sent to states far away from the US border, CNN (June 22, 2018) available at <https://www.cnn.com/politics/live-news/immigration-border-children-separation/h.714fd2e091af7813fb8df5fc587c7b8b>, attached hereto as Ex. 125. New York has a quasi-sovereign interest in ensuring that children

1 residing in New York State, who have been separated from their parents, are placed with family
2 members also residing in the State if the children cannot be quickly reunified with their parents.

3 333. Maryland has an interest in the health, safety, and wellbeing of all its residents,
4 including any parents or children being placed in Maryland under the Policy. Immigration agents
5 are reported to have sent dozens of children to Maryland during the implementation of the Trump
6 Administration's family separation policy. The children often have no family connection to the 7 state; they are sent here because the system has capacity. Some of the children have been placed 8 with foster families coordinated by care organizations, while others are placed in residential 9 group child care.
10

11 334. Immigration officials are sending separated children to Maryland without the 12 most basic information about the children or their parents, or how to connect them with one 13 another. And many of the children have come with little or no information and are too young—14 as young as 18 months—to communicate with caregivers or social workers trying to track down
15 relatives who could take them in. Thus, the sheltering organizations that are housing the children
16 do not know how to identify, let alone locate, the children's parents, who risk deportation before 17 they can find or be reunited with their children.
18

19 335. Care organizations report that children who have been separated from their 20 parents suffer greater trauma than other unaccompanied minors whom the organizations care for.
21 For some of these children, their suffering is immediately apparent, as has been shown in 22 publicly available videos and other recordings. For others, their suffering emerges over time, as 23 they become more comfortable with the staff of the care organizations. And when those 24 organizations can track down a parent and arrange for a call with his or her child, the children 25
26

1 are reportedly so upset afterwards that they need counseling. See Andrea K. McDaniels, Border

8 336. Parents who have been separated from their children are also being sent to 9 Maryland and detained in local facilities that contract with ICE to hold detainees, mostly pending
 10 criminal process. Anne Arundel, Frederick, Howard, and Worcester counties have all agreed to 11 hold immigration detainees, and the Anne Arundel Detention Center is reportedly holding at 12 least two parents who have been separated from their children under the Trump Administration’s
 13 policy. See Ex. 127. In addition, Maryland is the location of a Federal Correctional Institution
 14 and the Chesapeake Detention Facility where, by contract, the federal government houses federal 15 pre-trial detainees, which might be affected by ICE’s policy of housing separated parents in 16 federal detention facilities. Parents held in Maryland have little contact with their children and 17 no information about where they are being held. One was reportedly separated from his five-18 year-old daughter by force and has not had any contact with, or information about, her in the two 19 months since. See Patricia Sullivan, Md., Va. congressmen hear stories of family separation, the

1 337. In other respects, as well, ORR is using facilities in Maryland to facilitate the 2 Administration's family separation policy without providing the transparency that would allow 3 Maryland to ensure the safety and security of its residents, including the parents and children
4 who have been separated from one another under the policy. ORR has provided no information
5 about the care and circumstances of immigrant children detained within Maryland's borders—
6 where they are being held; what condition they are in; where their parents are; whether they have 7 adequate food, clothing and shelter; whether they have access to medical care and legal 8 representation; or when and how they will be reunited with their families.

10 338. Children separated from their families as a result of Defendants' actions have 11 been sent to organizations in Pennsylvania. For instance, 50 child immigrants separated from 12 their families are being housed at the Holy Family Institute in Emsworth, Pennsylvania, a 13 Catholic social services organization that is under contract with Defendant ORR. See Paula 14 Reed Ward and Ashley Murray, Child migrants separated from families housed at Holy Family

18 children, who range in age from 4 to 17, are from Honduras, Guatemala, El Salvador, and other

1 339. The District of Columbia places an emphasis on preserving families and 2 reunifying families even when children become involved with the state due to child abuse or 3 neglect. See D.C. Code § 4-1303.03(a)(11) and (a)(13). The District of Columbia follows the 4 United States Supreme Court’s holdings that there is “a presumption that fit parents act in the 5 best interests of their children,” Troxel v. Granville, 530 U.S. 57, 68, (2000), and recognition 6 that the state may not “inject itself into the private realm of the family” absent a finding of 7 unfitness. Id. at 68–69. The Court has frequently emphasized the importance of the family, and 8 has held that individuals have a fundamental right to parent their own children. Stanley v. Illinois,
9 405 U.S. 645, 651 (1972). This important relationship may not be terminated without a predicate
10 determination, by clear and convincing evidence that the individual is unfit to parent. Santosky
11 v. Kramer, 455 U.S. 745 760, 768–71 (1982).
12

14 religion, national origin, sex, age, marital status, personal appearance, sexual orientation, gender 15 identity or expression, familial status, family responsibilities, genetic information, disability,
16 matriculation, or political affiliation, source of income, status as a victim of an intrafamily
17 offense, and place of residence or business of any individual. D.C. Code § 2-1401.01.
18

19 341. Defendants’ Policy causes severe and potentially permanent emotional and 20 psychological trauma to children who have been separated from their parents, some of whom 21 are placed with sponsors in the District of Columbia. The number of children placed with 22 sponsors in the District will increase as the sponsors are identified and vetted, and approved to 23 receive these children.

V. CAUSES OF ACTION

Count I: Violation of Fifth Amendment – Substantive Due Process

342. All of the foregoing allegations are repeated and realleged as though fully set forth herein.

343. State residents who are parents have a fundamental liberty interest in the care, custody, and control of their children. This includes current state residents and those who may arrive in the States following separation pursuant to Defendants' Policy.

344. State residents who are minors have a reciprocal liberty interest in their parents' care. This includes current state residents and those who may arrive in the States following separation pursuant to Defendants' Policy.

345. State residents who are minors have a right to be free of unreasonable risk of harm, including trauma from separation and detention, as well as the risk of harm from housing them in unlicensed facilities.

346. Defendants' Policy offends the Due Process Clause by separating parents from their children without any showing that the parent is unfit or is otherwise endangering the child.

347. Defendants' violation causes ongoing harm to the States and their residents.

Count II: Violation of Fifth Amendment – Procedural Due Process

348. All of the foregoing allegations are repeated and realleged as though fully set forth herein.

349. The Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment prohibits the federal government from depriving individuals of their liberty interests without due process of law.

350. Defendants' Policy deprives the States' residents of a fundamental liberty interest with no hearing whatsoever. This includes current state residents and those who will arrive in the States following separation pursuant to Defendants' Policy.

351. Defendants have violated the procedural due process guarantees of the Fifth Amendment.

352. Defendants' violation causes ongoing harm to the States and their residents.

Count III: Violation of Fifth Amendment – Equal Protection

353. All of the foregoing allegations are repeated and realleged as though fully set forth herein.

354. The Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment prohibits the federal government from denying equal protection of the laws.

355. The Policy burdens a fundamental right and targets individuals for discriminatory treatment based on their nationality or ethnicity, without lawful justification, and is therefore not narrowly tailored to achieve a compelling governmental interest. The Policy is also unconstitutional because it disparately impacts immigrants from Latin America arriving at the Southwestern border and is motivated by animus and a desire to harm this particular group.

356. Alternatively, the discriminatory terms and application of the Policy are arbitrary and do not bear a rational relationship to a legitimate federal interest.

357. Through their actions above, Defendants have violated the equal protection guarantee of the Fifth Amendment.

358. Defendants' violation causes ongoing harm to the States and their residents.

Count IV: Violation of the Administrative Procedure Act

359. All of the foregoing allegations are repeated and realleged as though fully set forth herein.

360. The Administrative Procedure Act, 5 U.S.C. § 706(2), prohibits federal agency action that is arbitrary, unconstitutional, and contrary to statute.

361. Defendants' Policy constitutes final agency action for purposes of the Administrative Procedure Act.

362. Defendants have offered no legitimate basis for their Policy.

363. Defendants' Policy is arbitrary and capricious because it conflicts with various laws requiring Defendants and the States to consider the best interests and well-being of children arriving to the United States.

364. The Policy is not authorized or required by the TVPRA, which only applies to unaccompanied minors. The minors subject to Defendants' Policy are not "unaccompanied," as they are accompanied by a parent or guardian. Indeed, in a White House Press Release, dated October 8, 2017, Defendants released a "detailed outline of President Trump's immigration principles and policies" which states Defendants' agreement that "alien minors [] are not UACs [if they are] accompanied by a parent or legal guardian." See Immigration Principles & Policies, available at <http://www.aila.org/infonet/wh-immigration-principles-and-policies>, attached hereto as Ex. 131.

365. Further, as alleged herein, the separation Policy contravenes the spirit and purpose of the TVPRA, which seeks to protect children. In general, the TVPRA requires,

1 whenever possible, family reunification or other appropriate placement for unaccompanied alien
2 children. See 8 U.S.C. § 1232(c)(2)(A).

3 366. In implementing the Policy, federal agencies have taken or will take 4 unconstitutional and unlawful action, as alleged herein, in violation of the Administrative 5 Procedure Act.

7 367. In implementing the Policy, federal agencies have applied or will apply
8 provisions arbitrarily, in violation of the Administrative Procedure Act.

9 368. Defendants' violation causes ongoing harm to the State and its residents.

10 Count V: Violation of Asylum Laws

11 369. Under United States law, noncitizens with a well-founded fear of persecution
12 shall have the opportunity to obtain asylum in the United States. 8 U.S.C. § 1158 (“[a]ny alien
13 who is physically present in the United States or who arrives in the United States . . . irrespective 14 of such alien’s status, may apply for asylum in accordance with this section.”). Federal law also 15 prohibits the return of a noncitizen to a country where he may face torture or persecution. See 8
16 U.S.C. § 1231(b); United Nations Convention Against Torture (CAT), implemented in the 17 Foreign Affairs Reform and Restructuring Act of 1998, Pub. L. No. 105-277, div. G, Title XXII, 18 § 2242, 112 Stat. 2681, 2681-822 (1998) (codified as Note to 8 U.S.C. § 1231).

20 370. In enacting these statutes, Congress created a right to petition our government for 21 asylum that at the very least requires that asylum seekers be able to present themselves at ports
22 of entry to request asylum. Defendants are preventing asylum-seekers from presenting 23 themselves at ports of entry that are allegedly “full,” thus preventing asylum claims from being 24 heard, in violation of 8 U.S.C. § 1158.

371. Another effect of turning asylum-seekers away prior to their reaching a port of entry is that the immigrants are then forced to cross the border outside a port of entry, in a claimed violation of 8 U.S.C. § 1325, in order to present their asylum claim. But under the Policy, all such border-crossing violations are referred to the Department of Justice and prosecuted. By criminalizing the pursuit of asylum, this Policy runs counter to established immigration and refugee laws that allow a person to present themselves to immigration officials to request asylum wherever they are able.

VI. PRAYER FOR RELIEF

Plaintiffs request that the Court enter a judgment against Defendants and award the following relief:

a. Enjoin Defendants from refusing to accept applications for asylum at a valid port of entry, and from criminally charging asylum applicants with illegal entry or re-entry if they present themselves at a valid port of entry;

b. Declare Defendants' family separation Policy unauthorized by or contrary to the Constitution and laws of the United States;

c. Enjoin Defendants from enforcing the family separation Policy, including at all United States borders and ports of entry, pending further orders from this Court;

d. Order Defendants to expeditiously reunite all children with parents from whom they have been separated pursuant to the Policy, unless a court of competent jurisdiction has found the parents to be unfit;

1 e. Enjoin Defendants from conditioning family reunification on an 2 agreement not to petition for asylum or other relief available under the INA, or on an 3 agreement to withdraw a petition or other request for that relief;

4 f. Enjoin Defendants from removing separated parents from the United 5 States without their children, unless the parent affirmatively, knowingly, and voluntarily
6 waives the right to reunification before removal after consultation with an attorney;

7 g. Enjoin Defendants from placing children in unlicensed facilities;

8 h. Order Defendants to provide specific information to parents who are 9 lawfully separated from their children about the nature and purpose of the separation, the 10 process by which they can be reunified, and the whereabouts of their children at all times, 11 absent a finding by a court of competent jurisdiction that such information would be 12 dangerous to a child's welfare;
