

The Revere Way & Digital Citizenship: January is Relationships & Communication

Dear Students and Families,
Please help us build a safe and happy learning community by reviewing the core values of The Revere Way (see image at right).

Remember that when we all work together, we each gain. Let's begin the new year by building our relationships and strengthening our connections to each other as we work towards our common goals. Happy 2023!

Next week for Digital Citizenship, teachers will be addressing how students can communicate effectively and positively to build relationships.

As the line between online and offline continues to blur, students will reflect on how they can use intrapersonal and interpersonal skills to build and strengthen positive online communication and communities.

They will explore common digital stressors and their influences on relationships. Students will also gain an understanding of how to communicate effectively online and how and why some topics and conversations can best lend themselves to certain mediums. Later this month, we will send links to tips, and we encourage you to engage in conversation with your child about these important issues.
